

State Department Will Investigate Attack on Orduna

Treasury Officials Instructed to Obtain Statements From the Company's Officials and Passengers

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE MAKES PROTEST

LLOYD-GEORGE IS MAN OF HOUR IN EYES OF BRITISH

Minister of Munitions Settles Cardiff Colliery Strike in Quick Time

Terms of Settlement Not Yet Made Public but Men Will Return to Work Without Further Delay, Says Report from Center of Recent Disturbance.

(BY UNITED PRESS)
Cardiff, July 20.—The great strike of the South Wales coal miners that threatened to interfere seriously with the production of war munitions for the English armies, has been settled, it was announced here this evening. Strike leaders made the announcement after a short conference this afternoon with minister of munitions, Lloyd George and other members of the cabinet.

The terms have not yet been made public, but it is understood that they are of such a nature that the executive council of the miners' federation accepted them without further delay.

The settlement of the labor dispute, the most serious domestic trouble that has confronted the English government since the beginning of the war, is regarded here as personal triumph for Lloyd George, whose home is in Wales. Lloyd George came to Cardiff last night. He is today the man of the hour in London.

TRYING HARD TO END STRIKE OF WELSHMEN

(By United Press)
Cardiff, July 19.—Important new proposals by the government to end the South Wales coal strike brought the meeting of the executive council of the miners to an end at two o'clock this afternoon. What these proposals were none of the members would say. The officials prepared to leave at once for London, but received another message from President Walter Runciman of the board of trade saying their presence was not required. Another meeting of the council was then called at three P. M.

GREEK PARLIAMENT WILL URGUE WAR STAND

Special to the Progress
Athens, July 20.—The chamber of deputies meets today, after two postponements, and this event promises to bring the nation to its ultimate stand in the war situation. With Venizelos a helm, backed by a tremendous majority of the chamber, there can be no great delay in declaring Greece ally of the Quadruple Entente. The Hellenic mind is made up, and nothing can stem the popular demand for immediate participation in the war. The Greek army, trained and hardy fighters, is anxious to get into the campaign against Turkey. A hundred thousand men are in training, and the reserves have been notified of the government's intention to call them to the colors.

Mrs. C. C. Owens and daughter Miss Alice Owens, of New York, who are visiting relatives in Curwensville were in Clearfield shopping today and went to Woodland to spend a few days with relatives there before returning to Curwensville.

All silk crepe-de-chene waists, in recent styles $2.50 values at $1.98 Mirkins.

600 MACHINISTS AT REMINGTON PLANT OUT

By United Press
Bridgeport July 20 Six hundred machinists employed in the Remington Arms plant, struck here at noon today. There was little disturbance. The men went to work, but refused to leave the plant.

(By United Press)
Washington, July 20.—The state department began an investigation today of the Orduna incident. It asked the treasury department to secure through customs officials affidavits by the Cunard's crew and passengers and such other information as is available concerning the reported submarine attack on the vessel. This followed receipt of a letter from W. C. Thompson, of Chicago, an official of the federal government, an Orduna passenger, referring to the affair. Thompson did not claim to have personal knowledge of the torpedo attack but said he was awakened in his state room by the firing of shots presumably from the submarine. Secretary Lansing said his department was still without information to substantiate the story that torpedo was fired at the Orduna without warning.

Mr. Thompson is a member of the federal industrial relations commissions and was returning on the Orduna from Great Britain where he had been pursuing investigations of industrial conditions at the instance of the government. Upon his arrival at New York he stated to newspaper men that he would make the attack the subject of a report to the government.

It is believed here that if the statements obtained by the treasury department coincide with those made by officers of the Orduna and passengers on board the vessel on her arrival, the state department will ask the German government to explain the attack.

WELL KNOWN MISSIONARY WORKER DIES SUDDENLY

Amos Cravenar Had Many Friends in Clearfield County

Many friends of the American Sunday school union will regret to learn of the sudden death of Amos O. Cravenar who has been a solicitor for the S. S. union for 13 years. His death occurred suddenly while on his way to take the train at Brockwayville a few days ago.

Mr. Cravenar lived at Indiana, Pa., and has been engaged in the work of raising funds for the support of many missionaries. He was known and loved by many Sunday school people throughout western Pennsylvania.

FINAL MEETING OF THE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Chamber of Commerce Membership Hustlers Report Tonight

The final meeting of the members of the campaign committee which has had charge of the chamber of commerce canvass will be held tonight, when the work of the past week will be reviewed and a complete report submitted. The chamber of commerce officials urge a full attendance at this meeting so that the campaign can be closed definitely tonight.

RED MEN BEGIN WORK FOR REUNION IN AUGUST

By order of the tribe, the Red Men will meet every Thursday evening at the club rooms after July 23, until the reunion which will be held in the Clearfield driving park August 6. The object of meeting every week to transact various business relative to the reunion. Every member of the lodge is requested to be present and some very important business is expected to come up at these meetings.

MEMBERSHIP CARDS READY

Membership cards containing the name of the member, firm or individual, and bearing the official seal of the chamber of commerce are now ready for distribution. Members whose cards have not been issued are requested to call up the secretary, who will see that prompt delivery is made.

Comet Goes Round Sun Today

Special to the Progress
Berkeley, Calif., July 20.—According to the calculations made by Prof. Crawford at the student's observatory, Mollish's comet, which has been visible from the earth for several months, will make its perihelion passage around the sun today.

Attractive caps, with veils. Special for 59 cents, at Mirkins.

HOW THE RUSSIANS ARE FIGHTING BEFORE WARSAW

The fighting in Poland before Warsaw has resolved itself into a situation similar to that on the Western front. The Russians have fortified themselves behind a resistance in their advance when they encounter these protected positions. The men shown here are members of the famous Ponogorijski regiment of Moscow, reputed to be Russia's best fighters. They are in the advanced trenches on the Polish frontier. Their position is officially described as "somewhere along the Polish front."

CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO PROVIDE FOR 100 NEW SUBS

National Defense League Enters Campaign for Undersea Boats For the United States

Vast Number of Deadly Craft Necessary for Coast Protection, and at Honolulu and Manila Advance Bases, According to Authorities of the League.

Washington, July 20.—Congress should appropriate for one hundred submarines at the next session, according to a statement issued here today by the National Defense League.

"A recent account, widely printed by the press, that the general navy board will recommend appropriations for at least thirty submarines and that these will be included in the naval estimates to be sent to the next congress by secretary Daniels, is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough," according to the league's statement.

"We must make provisions for more than three times that number of undersea boats," declares the statement.

The league has launched a campaign throughout the country to arouse public sentiment for one hundred submarines in the next naval bill. It will agitate the question of submarines until Congress convenes next December.

In this campaign the League will have the support of powerful members of Congress. A letter received by the league today from representative William D. Stephens, of Los Angeles, who has recently been in the Hawaiian Islands investigating the defenses of Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, said that Mr. Stephens will demand at the next congress appropriations for one hundred submarines. The California Congressman's letter bears great weight because he is one of the leading members of the house naval affairs committee, and was largely responsible at the last congress in forcing an increase in the number in the last naval bill. Secretary Daniels having recommended eight to sixteen, the number in the last naval bill, Secretary Daniels having recommended eight of the boats but congress, largely through the efforts of Mr. Stephens and other Congressmen who are members of the League, doubling that number. Mr. Stephens wrote from Honolulu: "I am more than ever convinced that the United States should have another hundred submarines, at least fifty of them stationed on the Pacific coast, more battleships, and several battle cruisers, besides a sufficient number of auxiliary vessels."

"The United States now has a total of 70 submarines, built or building, but many of those now on commission are obsolete and practically worthless. If the congress will provide at the next session 100 new submarines, with the submarines now authorized, or building, with those that are in commission, which are really efficient and seaworthy, the navy will then have a fleet of approximately 150 undersea boats that will be ample to protect the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and the Panama Canal," is the assertion of the League.

"While most of the new submarines should be coast and harbor defense vessels, a suitable proportion should be sea-going craft with a cruising radius of at least 3,000 miles, a radius large enough to enable the boats to be shifted from coast to coast line through the Panama Canal, and from the Pacific coast to Alaska or Hawaii under their own power."

DEER HEADS REPRESENT THE PROWESS OF LOCAL NIMRODS

Six Specimens from Crystal Springs Camp on Display Locally

The mounted heads of last year's catch of deer of the Crystal Springs hunting camp are on exhibit in the Rosser furniture store window. The total number comprises a 3-prong buck caught by Wayne Ammerman, spike buck, William Boyce, 4-prong buck M. T. Bowman, 4-prong buck, F. G. Harris, spike buck Dr. J. C. Nugent, and a 5-prong buck by C. S. Schoff.

The display is very interesting and attractive and represents a good record in the most attractive and fascinating of the wild wood sports. The heads were mounted by Charles H. Eldon, the leading taxidermist of Williamsport.

PENN PUBLIC TO FURNISH POWER TO GLEN RICHEY

Village Will Have Modern Equipment Following Installation Now in Progress

Will Cut in on Philipsburg High Tension Line, Furnishing Current for Light Heat and Power—Snow Shoe Also to be Supplied from Philipsburg.

Electrical improvements of importance to Glen Richey will be installed by the Penn Public Service company immediately at Glen Richey. A step-down station will be installed on the high tension line from the Philipsburg plant to furnish light heat and power. One of the principal users of the power supply will be the pumping station which supplies Glen Richey with its water.

The moving out of the Paele, Peacock and Kerr Coal company to a situation across the hill where they can secure better openings necessitates this installation as the coal company formerly pumped the water by steam for the town.

The step-down station will be installed on the high tension circuit which makes a loop from Philipsburg passing through Osceola, Houtzdale, Madiera, Boardman, Curwensville and Clearfield and back to Philipsburg where the central power plant is located. The line passes near Glen Richey and thus affords the much needed power supply.

The high tension circuit carries a voltage of 11,000 which will in a short time be raised to 22,000 volts to supply the increased demand for power which is developing in Clearfield county. This voltage will be cut down to 2,200 for use at Glen Richey to run the motor driven pump which draws the water from an artesian well and stores it in a reservoir for the town use. The voltage for electric light will be taken from this secondary line by individual transformers.

Another improvement which the Penn Public company has under the course of construction is the power line which they are running from the high tension line at Winburne to supply Snow Shoe with power for its mines and light for the town.

Vessels of a suitable proportion should be sea-going craft with a cruising radius of at least 3,000 miles, a radius large enough to enable the boats to be shifted from coast to coast line through the Panama Canal, and from the Pacific coast to Alaska or Hawaii under their own power."

HAPPY BOYS OFF TODAY FOR CAMP LIFE AT BO NARR

Seventeen Happy Youngsters Make Up Clearfield's Contingent For Up-River Trip

Will be Joined by Youngsters of DuBois and Punxsutawney for Outing Under the Leadership of Officers of the Y. M. C. A.

A truck load of boys and camp equipment started from the Y. M. C. A. this morning for what promises to be a delightful ten day's outing to camp Bo Narr, near Lumber City. The camp will be in charge of leaders from Clearfield, DuBois and Punxsutawney. The spot selected is an ideal one with everything so arranged that the boys can enjoy every phase of camp life.

Five tents were taken from here, and with DuBois and Punxsutawney delegations it is expected that camp Bo Narr will be quite a city of tents. There were 17 boys and 5 leaders from Clearfield. The number from the other two places is not known but it is expected that a large crowd will be present.

The leaders will be: first half, W. Irving Lewis, Clearfield, second half, C. H. Graef, DuBois treasurer, C. H. Manley, Punxsutawney, bible teacher, N. J. Mecklem, Clearfield, commissary, E. B. Hagaman, Punxsutawney, athletics and aquatics F. H. Schantz, DuBois.

The boys from Clearfield were: John Musser, Fred Musser, John Howe, Lawrence Howe, Theodore Kurtz, Jack Kurtz, Robert Kurtz, Robert Ferguson, Chester Cole, Jack Mohney, Jr., John Martin, Jr., Way Powell, Charles Beahan, Nathan Smith, Gurney Smith, William Betts, Justin Kuhn with W. I. Lewis, J. L. Henderson, H. C. Whiteside, Arthur McQuillen and David Ferguson as leaders. Each leader will have charge of seven boys.

YOUNG COUPLE ARE TO BE MARRIED THIS EVENING

Miss Pickles to Become Bride of Clarence Brigham

A small wedding will take place this evening at six o'clock at the New Baptist church when Miss Lois Pickles daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickles of Walnut street, will be united in marriage to Clarence Brigham, of Clearfield. The marriage ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Norman J. Mecklem and will be attended by the immediate relatives and friends.

After the wedding a wedding dinner will be served to the bridal party at the home of the bride-elect on Walnut street. The couple will go to house keeping on Bridge street immediately.

The bride-elect was a member of the junior class of the Clearfield high school last year and has many friends who wish her every happiness. The bridegroom-elect is an employee of the Orcutt garage and has a host of friends in the automobile circle who wish him a joyous journey in the new life.

BRIDGE CLUB TO MEET

The Hospital bridge club will meet with Mrs. F. G. Smith, Wednesday, July 21 at two o'clock. Please inform hostess if you will be present.

Germans Sweeping All Before Them In Warsaw Drive

Successful Everywhere Along 100 Mile Battle Front, Reports Seem to Agree

IMPORTANT BALTIC SEAPORT IS TAKEN

BERLIN, JULY 20.—WHAT APPEARS TO BE THE FINAL STAGE OF THE WARSAW DRIVE HAS BEEN BEGUN BY GENERAL VON BULOW'S GREAT ARMY, WHICH IS SWEEPING ALL BEFORE IT ALONG A BATTLE FRONT 100 MILES LONG. IN THE FACE OF STRONG RESISTANCE BY THE RUSSIAN ARMY WHICH HAS TAKEN EVERY FOOT OF THE GROUND.

Berlin, July 20.—Sweeping down on Warsaw from the north, the German army under General Gallwitz, has forced the Russians to retreat across the Narew river at several points, and taken up positions less than 40 miles from the Polish capital. The official statement from the war office today, the first it has issued since Sunday, declared that the great one thousand mile drive to squeeze the Russians out of Warsaw is moving forward with amazing speed. The Slavs are retreating in the Riga region.

General von Hindenberg has captured over 100 officers and nearly 10,000 men. Between the Bug and Vistula rivers General Mackensen took over 16,000 prisoners in the last 48 hours. Prisoners in all sectors total more than 50,000.

One wing of General von Bulow's army has captured the Baltic seaport of Windau commanding the railway leading to Riga Northwest of Warsaw the Russians are falling back on Novo Georgevsk, one of the main defenses of Warsaw, 20 miles from it.

RUSSIANS ADMIT REVERSES

Petrograd, July 20.—The war office admitted today that the Russians have been driven from their position and forced to retire at a half dozen points under heavy pressure from the German army driving against Warsaw. In the extreme north the Germans advanced toward the great naval base of Riga and have occupied Tukum.

North of Warsaw von Hindenberg's center has captured the village of Toremly and is engaged in continuous assaults against the Russian line north of the Narew river. Southeast of Warsaw the Russians have been forced to evacuate Krasnosaf, eight miles south of Lublin-Chelm railway, toward which General Mackensen's army is attempting to batter its way.

North of Lemberg the armies of General Ivanoff have been driven east by superior forces of Austrians. At several other points, however, the Russians are maintaining themselves against the heaviest attacks and are hurling the enemy back with severe losses.

EMPLOYEES JOURNEY TO PHILIPSBURG FOR PICNIC

Annual Affair of Penn Public Company Takes Place Tomorrow

About 250 employees of the Penn Public Service company with their wives and friends will hold their annual picnic at Philipsburg Wednesday. A large number will be present from Clearfield, Indiana and Philipsburg, and other towns where the company operates will send equally large delegations.

The Clearfield party will go to Philipsburg on the 1:15 train and will be taken from the station at Philipsburg to the Philipsburg athletic park on a special trolley.

This is the second picnic of its kind and is expected to excel last year's picnic in every way.

A special feature of the outing in the afternoon will be the "fight to a finish" baseball game between Mr. Brohl's champion Clearfield team and Mr. Pearce's invincible Philipsburg outfit. All the Clearfield employees are buying megaphones to yell their team to victory.

After the picnicers have enjoyed their basket dinner they will spend the evening dancing to the music of a large orchestra which has been secured for the occasion.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS TO PICNIC AT GOLDEN ROD

A meeting of Miss Carrie Burkett Smith's Sunday school class of girls of the Presbyterian Sunday school has been called for this evening at the home of Miss Smith on Fourth and Locust streets to arrange for a picnic of the class at Camp Golden Rod next Tuesday. The Sunday school class is composed of about 20 members all of whom are earnestly requested by Miss Smith to be present for the arrangements.

CABINET MEETING MOST IMPORTANT SINCE CIVIL WAR

Reply to German Demands Discussed by President and His Advisers Today

Serious Expressions Following Meeting Indicate Crisis in Relations With Germany — Secretary Spends Hour With President

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Washington, July 20.—In a cabinet meeting regarded as one of the most important since the Civil War, President Wilson and his advisers today practically determined American attitude toward Germany. For nearly two hours the President and the members of his ministry went over the note drafted by Secretary Lansing in reply to the German foreign office's last rejection of German submarine warfare. Secretary Redfield was the only absent member.

The serious expressions worn by President and his cabinet indicated the gravity of the situation which was felt by all. Before the meeting chief executive and Secretary Lansing had an hour's private talk at the white house looking over the situation.

Reported submarine attack on Cunard liner Orduna with American passengers on board also was taken into the situation. Secretary Lansing announced that federal investigation of the incident had been ordered through the treasury department.

FRISCO STAKES $100,000 TO WIN $4,000,000

Special to the Progress
San Francisco, July 20.—This city is undertaking a campaign of "frisco finance," in which it will spend $100,000 on the chance of getting $4,000,000.

The four millions represents money impounded through court injunction litigation. The opening gun has already been sounded, in the water rate injunction cases, which have caused the accumulation of something over two millions. Eight of these injunction cases are pending and trial has begun this month. There are two gas rate injunctions unsettled which are responsible for the accumulation of a million dollars. One electric and one telephone injunction suit are also pending. The hundred thousand which the city is plunging represents the amount that will be expended in appropriations of the utilities mentioned in order to strike a rate-making body. The cases are all before H. M. Wright, S. standing master in chancery. His findings will be submitted to the U. S. district court for final adjudication.

The Evanston, Ill., public library is lending pianola rolls; another at Madison, Wis., owns and operates a motion picture shown in Edinburg, Minn. There is a play-room and gymnasium and the library at Bingham, N. T., conducts a technical school.

Advertise in the Progress

INFECTION ENDANGERED LEO FRANK'S CHANCES

By United Press
Milledgeville, July 20.—Sentencing set in seriously this afternoon in Leo M. Frank's case. His temperature jumped from 101 to 101.4. The doctors state that he is still hopeful.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

THE BROKEN COIN

A Story of Mystery and Adventure
By EMERSON HOUGH
From the Scenario by
GRACE CUNARD

COPYRIGHT, 1912, BY
EMERSON HOUGH

SYNOPSIS.

Kitty Gray, newspaper woman, finds in a shop half of a broken coin, the mutilated inscription on which arouses her curiosity and leads her, at the cost of her managing editor, to the discovery of the truth about the coin. She is followed, and on arrival in Gretzhoffen her adventures while chasing the secret of the broken coin begin.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XI.

The King of Gretzhoffen.

"Your majesty does me honor."
"It was with simple dignity that the young American girl spoke these words to the monarch in whose presence she found herself fresh from her adventures."

"We could not too much honor so charming representative of your great country, my dear young lady," said Michael.

"Do not misunderstand me, your majesty," resumed the young woman. "It is more than possible I have been brought before you under false pretenses. I am not a person of rank, and indeed but a prisoner taken yonder by outlaws. But for the wit of my servant I think I might have been held for a ransom."

"It were large ransom would be fit for such hostage as yourself, mademoiselle. Whatever it was it would have been paid, had we but known!"
"I thank you, sire. Perhaps there will be no future need. In sooth, from the way the handkerchief looked on together of our party, I would rather think he would prefer him to myself as hostage."

"Whom do you mean?"
"The Count Frederick, sire."
"Again the Count Frederick! He seems always to come into my affairs. The annoyance in the king's face was unmistakable."

"He has been much concerned in my own."

"How, mademoiselle?"

"I must explain. Sire, I came to your country only in my professional capacity—I had no more urgent errand than to find the half of a certain missing coin. The other half had come into my possession by chance. It was my fancy."

"What, a broken coin? You interest me, mademoiselle. I felt from the first moment that eventually we would find some common ground of interest. A coin—a broken coin—I know of some such thing myself. There are current stories about it. See, I have it, for my good friend Frederick seems for some strange reason to have a fancy for it himself. Would you like, then, to see it?"

Kitty's eyes flashed in eagerness.

"Above all things, sire! It would complete my happiness to see it."

"Then you shall, assuredly."

He bowed in somewhat adrope gallantry as she extended her hand toward the pudgy palm in which lay the object which for her held such interest. In a glance she saw the identity of the missing half. The remaining words of the inscription—they were there, she was sure. "Torture chamber—treasures of the king!" it was plain to her. These two pieces of metal joined would represent a story worth the having.

"Do you not desire it, then?" The voice of the monarch carried a certain reproach.

"Desire it, your majesty! I should desire nothing so much in all the world. With both halves in my hand—sire, I should feel that the world was mine."

"Why not gratify that wish then, mademoiselle?" Listen, Count Frederick desired this very trinket—for a lady, he said. Here is a lady who desires it for herself. Why should we not give it her—why should we not have right as good as his?"

"You cannot mean it for me?"

"But yes, precisely! And listen, my dear young lady. There is something about this broken coin which begins to annoy me. Count Frederick is always referring to it for one reason or another—he has some motive which I cannot divine. Now, of late I have had abundant troubles, many persons who importune me. In these serious times, the people being so discontented, we have matters of more importance than to trifle with this trinket, as I say. You desire it. It bores me. Who better than yourself should own it if you like?"

Kitty stood looking at him, scarce believing what he said. King Michael went out.

"Two things interest me today, my dear lady. First, how to quiet my people, the second, to discover some fashion which shall keep you here in our own country, interested and useful. I am convinced of your own wisdom, your own justice—your own experience in your land as to law and liberty and justice. Sometimes out of the mouth of a woman—a lady of rank, of experience—you might learn the better how to carry on the duties of a state."

"And the duties of the state would dispose your majesty warmly to the good of his people?"

"Precisely. It is as I would have said it, mademoiselle. You Americans are extraordinary!"

Kitty took from his hand the broken bit of metal and examined it thoughtfully.

"I thank you more than I can tell, your majesty," said she, soberly. "It shall be my pleasure to find out for your people the unexplained message of this coin."

hall, announcing the approach of a servant. An official of the palace entered and stood motionless near the door.

"What then, Andreas?"

"The Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen, the Count Sachio of Grahaffen."

"Let them enter, Andreas."

Both gentlemen bowed deeply as they entered and each kissed the royal hand respectfully. Kitty ignored Count Sachio and bowed but coldly to Count Frederick.

Count Frederick, in whose mind seemed to linger but scant remembrance of any unpleasant scenes in which he had figured, smiled now, and after the American fashion, as he faded, held out his hand.

Kitty could not refuse it. Quickly she shifted the broken bit of coin from her right hand to her left—quickly, but not so quickly as to escape the keen eyes of the man who faced her now.

"Count Sachio, you are welcome from your kingdom to ours. I believe you have never heard of the young American of distinction who has come among us of late—your have not met?"

Kitty looked calmly at the count and made no reply.

"Pas encore, votre majeste," replied Sachio in the common language used for such hostage as yourself, mademoiselle. Whatever it was it would have been paid, had we but known!"

"I thank you, sire. Perhaps there will be no future need. In sooth, from the way the handkerchief looked on together of our party, I would rather think he would prefer him to myself as hostage."

"Whom do you mean?"

"The Count Frederick, sire."

"Again the Count Frederick! He seems always to come into my affairs. The annoyance in the king's face was unmistakable."

"He has been much concerned in my own."

"How, mademoiselle?"

"I must explain. Sire, I came to your country only in my professional capacity—I had no more urgent errand than to find the half of a certain missing coin. The other half had come into my possession by chance. It was my fancy."

"What, a broken coin? You interest me, mademoiselle. I felt from the first moment that eventually we would find some common ground of interest. A coin—a broken coin—I know of some such thing myself. There are current stories about it. See, I have it, for my good friend Frederick seems for some strange reason to have a fancy for it himself. Would you like, then, to see it?"

Kitty's eyes flashed in eagerness.

"Above all things, sire! It would complete my happiness to see it."

"Then you shall, assuredly."

He bowed in somewhat adrope gallantry as she extended her hand toward the pudgy palm in which lay the object which for her held such interest. In a glance she saw the identity of the missing half. The remaining words of the inscription—they were there, she was sure. "Torture chamber—treasures of the king!" it was plain to her. These two pieces of metal joined would represent a story worth the having.

"Do you not desire it, then?" The voice of the monarch carried a certain reproach.

"Desire it, your majesty! I should desire nothing so much in all the world. With both halves in my hand—sire, I should feel that the world was mine."

"Why not gratify that wish then, mademoiselle?" Listen, Count Frederick desired this very trinket—for a lady, he said. Here is a lady who desires it for herself. Why should we not give it her—why should we not have right as good as his?"

"You cannot mean it for me?"

"But yes, precisely! And listen, my dear young lady. There is something about this broken coin which begins to annoy me. Count Frederick is always referring to it for one reason or another—he has some motive which I cannot divine. Now, of late I have had abundant troubles, many persons who importune me. In these serious times, the people being so discontented, we have matters of more importance than to trifle with this trinket, as I say. You desire it. It bores me. Who better than yourself should own it if you like?"

Kitty stood looking at him, scarce believing what he said. King Michael went out.

"Two things interest me today, my dear lady. First, how to quiet my people, the second, to discover some fashion which shall keep you here in our own country, interested and useful. I am convinced of your own wisdom, your own justice—your own experience in your land as to law and liberty and justice. Sometimes out of the mouth of a woman—a lady of rank, of experience—you might learn the better how to carry on the duties of a state."

"And the duties of the state would dispose your majesty warmly to the good of his people?"

"Precisely. It is as I would have said it, mademoiselle. You Americans are extraordinary!"

Kitty took from his hand the broken bit of metal and examined it thoughtfully.

"I thank you more than I can tell, your majesty," said she, soberly. "It shall be my pleasure to find out for your people the unexplained message of this coin."

Relieved now of this care, and satisfied that her plan would provide for the safety of this prized possession for that night at least—Kitty passed on to other matters.

Of what use, after all, was half this coin, while the Count Frederick still retained the other half—taken from her by force, by violence?

She stood for a time, her fingers at her lips, engaged in thought. "I am going direct to Count Frederick himself and ask him for the other half of the coin. He knows the king has given me his half—perhaps he will relent and let me match the king's half of the Gretzhoffen coin."

With her to think was to act. A half hour later, ready robed for the street, she was in her car and on her way to the palace of Count Frederick.

They knew her at the count's palace now—or thought they knew her—and so no questions were asked when she applied at the door. Pending the coming of the count, who was at home, as she learned, she was shown to a reception room close to the entry door. As she sat here, she heard footsteps approaching, heard voices in conversation. She knew that Count Frederick was there, but not alone.

Kitty listened shamelessly—for now indeed all was fair in war for her in case like this.

She heard Count Frederick address his companion as "My Lord Minister," and again as "Danislaw," so knew that it was none other than the prime minister of Gretzhoffen with whom he was conversing.

"My friend," she heard a hard, incisive voice declare, "this ball tonight is the crowning mistake of the entire year. It may mean the ruin of Gretzhoffen. I tell you, Count Frederick, revolution is in the air. The people are demanding the answer to all their sufferings, to their poverty, their anxieties. That answer, if we do not use every means to change it, surely will be written red!"

"But what plan do you propose, my lord minister? What can I do?"

"One thing. Let me be blunt and brief—have the king sober tonight! I shame to say those words—but those are my words to you. Have our monarch—whom we reverence—sober tonight! If the people see him drunken, if they find him careless, indifferent, in times like this—pouf!—revolution. I tell you, and the answer written with the pen of blood."

Count Frederick apparently paused at this. There was a hint of something suppressed in his voice when at length he did reply.

"My lord minister, I'll see the king!"

Kitty thought that now they clasped hands. She heard the prime minister departing, each giving the other formal words of courtesy.

Now she heard Frederick calling to his servants.

"Rubinoff, Franko—any of your calls—well, you, Rubinoff. Go at once to the apartments of the Count Sachio and ask him if he will join me at once."

Kitty, still trembling in suppressed excitement, waited yet longer before declaring herself. She heard Frederick pacing up and down in the room, muttering to himself—heard also after an interminable interval the footsteps of another in the hall—heard Frederick greet him.

"Ah, Sachio, you are welcome indeed. We have news for you, my friend—news that may go well with our plans."

"Command me, my dear Frederick."

"I ask you, my dear Sachio, to do an easy, pleasant and interesting task. It is no more than to go this afternoon, to win in some fashion into the presence of King Michael the Second, our beloved monarch—whom we both reverence—and then and there, by what means shall seem most expedient, to induce him to drink more wine than ever he did in one day in his life."

Count Sachio laughed loud and long.

"For what purpose, my good Frederick?" he inquired at length.

"For a plain and definite purpose! Listen. As you know, I have had my eyes on the throne of Gretzhoffen since the death of the old king. That throne is rightfully mine, and will be mine. This land is full of discontent—like your own, yonder. The people complain. They are on the very verge of revolution at this moment. This great ball tonight—the thought of its expense has enraged our people. Now, if tonight they see our beloved monarch—whom we both reverence—in his usual or more than his usual state of intoxication—then there's the match to the powder mill. The revolution is begun. The explosion is made. It will be too late, then. Their wrath against the weak Michael—disappearing, wasting their substance for them—will be unappeasable. For the rest—I have made my plans. My own regiments will be faithful. The regiments of the king are none too faithful. The banditti of the desert are with us. Tomorrow there will be a new king in Gretzhoffen, and that king will be—Frederick the First."

Kitty slipped from the room. The hall was empty. An instant later she was out of the great entry and passing to her car.

At her hotel, once more she hurried to her room. Here was somewhat to be done. She knew the plot now—all was plain as to the intentions of Frederick in regard to the kingdom of Gretzhoffen and to the monarch who held the throne.

"Your majesty," she wrote in her rolling hand now. "The young American which is returned to your care at midnight tonight—has by chance learned of a plot to injure your majesty and to injure the kingdom of Gretzhoffen as well. Trust her to explain when opportunity shall come. Meantime have the word of one who is solicitous for your safety. Drink no wine. Beware."

Once more she telephoned to the bureau of telegraphs, called for a messenger, and sent her simple missive to the king.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Prisoner.

Having dispatched her messages, Kitty Gray sat alone once more in her room. There came to her mind once more the reflection that now she had not even one portion of the broken coin. As to that which had gone to the king, she felt fairly sure that she might regain it. As to that which had been taken from her by force by Count Frederick, she was far as ever from its possession.

"The simplest way is the best," said she once more. "I'll go back there again."

"I was not so fortunate as to find monsieur the count at home before," she explained to the attendants who met her at the door.

"Monsieur the count has gone out but now."

A sudden resolution came to Kitty's mind even as a sudden flush came to her cheek.

"So? Then I will wait his coming. If you please, the apartments of monsieur the count."

The man left her, and she closed the door. An instant later she was at work turning over the articles on the dresser, peering here and there, looking this way and that—and unsuccessfully.

But meantime the attendant who had left her, anxious to be of service to his master, sent out posthaste to summon Count Frederick to his return. He met the count himself, and yet another attendant, upon the point of entering the palace. The newcomer was talking to the count excitedly.

"Excellency, I tell you the woman is outwitting you. She sent her half the coin this very morning—sent it to the king by special messenger. I saw it—I felt it in the envelope. I am sure. There is some plot afoot. And I brought the news as soon as possible, but have searched for you long."

"Come," said Frederick, and he hastened the more when he met the messenger advising him of Kitty's presence in the palace.

Her search still uncompleted, Kitty heard footsteps approaching, and turned desperately like some trapped animal. There was no escape—the narrow window, as she knew, was two stories above the court below. And even as she stepped to the door she met there the smiling, sardonic face of Count Frederick himself.

"The honor is mine, mademoiselle!" said he with icy politeness. "True, I had not expected you."

Shamefaced, confused, for once unable to make any explanation, Kitty could but stand and stare at him. An instant later she heard the click of the lock and the passing of footsteps in the hall once more. She was alone! She was a prisoner!

She sat alone, helpless, unanswered in spite of her pounding on the door, her cries for help, until she was utterly weary—until the shades of night came.

She looked at her watch. The hour was approaching eleven. The great black and white ball was now in progress at the winter palace across the city.

She went to the window and looked out into the night. All the court was dark—save one window directly below her on the opposite side, fifteen feet below, ten feet across the narrow courtyard. Even as she looked down at it she saw a face thrust out—a face upturned towards her.

"Rouleau!" she exclaimed. "Can it be possible? Rouleau, help me! I am a prisoner here—they have locked me in—there is no way out. Help me!"

Rouleau's own presence in the palace she did not at the moment undertake to explain. As a matter of fact, he had but that day come in from the camp of the banditti, where he had been detained.

"Wait," he cried. "I will show you."

An iron grating, with the stairs of a fire escape, led down directly in front of Rouleau's window. He came out upon this, braced his legs across, and back under the rail, and held out his mighty arms.

"Jump," he cried. "It is safe."

An instant later she was on the iron grating and into the window, and Rouleau, gaunt, unshaven, smiling, her friend and rescuer, had led her to the door.

"Come," he said, and without pausing for any discussion, he hurried out, she following.

"It is late, Rouleau," whispered Kitty back to him. "It is eleven o'clock. The king goes to the great ball at midnight. Hurry, I must be there. Quick!"

CHAPTER XIV.

The Ballroom.

In his own apartments that evening Michael the king had passed the time in somewhat preoccupied fashion. Left alone, and hence unhappy in his counsels, he welcomed the announcement of the presence of the Count Sachio of Grahaffen, who wished to pay his compliments to the king.

"Come then, my dear count," said Michael to him. "You are very welcome at this hour. You will have a glass of our own vintage—I have a cask of Luceyen which is quite worth while."

"With all my heart," said Count Sachio.

The attendant removed the cork from the bottle reverently, poured slowly, gently, the amber fluid into the tall glasses upon the table. It was at that moment that King Michael he thought him of a certain message handed to him but left until now unopened. He frowned as he looked at the word, irrelevant when addressed to royalty, and urging haste. "Important. Is it so? What shall I do, my dear count? Throw it away?"

Count Sachio cast a glance upon the inscription.

"Your majesty," said he, "it is in the hand of a lady. By no means throw away any letter, a woman writes to you—and by no means write one yourself. Am I not good counsel?"

Smiling, King Michael broke open the small hotel seal, frowning as he did so at what seemed to him undue familiarity on the part of someone, he knew not who. But as his eyes ran over the few lines of the message his expression suddenly changed. The words remained deeply written on his mind. "Your majesty . . . young American . . . drink no wine."

Count Sachio looked on respectfully, his glass arrested, naturally venturing no comment. King Michael made no effort to turn the conversation. He left his wine untasted!

"Indeed, our people also are growing in audacity," went on Count Sachio presently. "But I, pledge your majesty a long and happy reign." He raised his glass and waited.

"Drink heartily, good Count Sachio," said King Michael. "As for myself, I have dined but lately, as I said. The doctors say dreadful things to me. You excuse me?"

He had poured but a small portion in his own glass, and raised his hand against more.

Sachio was obliged to admit to Count Frederick, whom now he early sought, that he doubted the full success of his errand.

"Leave him then to me," exclaimed Frederick—"he never fails to do as I ask. Make ready for the ball—time presses now. I myself will hasten to see the king before he leaves for the winter palace."

Frederick, making urgent excuses now to enter the apartments of the king after his arrival, found the monarch in the same apartment, stolidly regarding the now empty bottle of wine.

A certain idea came to the brain of Michael, the king, as he now acknowledged the visit of Count Frederick at so late an hour. If this message had warned him not to drink wine—then there must be someone in the world who wished him to drink wine. Why? Who was that person? Might it not be this man here—Count Frederick—the man whom really he feared? If so, would not feigned intoxication serve well to discover the other's nature?

Reasoning thus, King Michael with small exertion of histrionic art managed to give an excellent imitation to his friend of a monarch far gone in wine. Frederick, pleading fatigue and thirst, plied him farther, and Michael apparently yielded, using still such arts as served him for the time being.

When, not too long before the appointed hour of midnight, Frederick left the palace, he left behind him as he was assured, a monarch hopelessly fuddled.

So the lights flamed on at all the windows of the Winter palace.

Suddenly the music broke, crashed and swept into the national air. A murmur went about! The king! The dancers hastened back to the sides of the room. All eyes turned toward the great entrance.

Under the festooned flags, escorted by his uniformed officers, himself wearing all his decorations and garbed as a king should be, there appeared King Michael of Gretzhoffen.

The hour of midnight struck. The eyes of more than one man, on the great dancing floor—including those of Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen—looked at the king amazed. Here was no staggering monarch, maudlin in his cups, come to make a spectacle of himself before his people. No, he walked straight as any. And behind him from the street there came not shouts of derision, but something of welcome, of confidence—a pitiful expression of a people willing yet longer to endure a king.

At the king's side, her hand on his arm, there walked the figure of a tall and beautiful woman, arrayed—as were all those others present—in a costume of black and white—a tall young woman whom not many of those present recognized. A few passed the word, "The American!"

The music of the royal anthem ceased. An instant and the orchestra broke out once more in the sensuous strains of a southern waltz. King Michael as yet did not dance, but he gave word that the ball should proceed. A uniformed officer of the court now approached Count Frederick as he stood not far removed from the royal presence.

"Monsieur, the count," said he de-

At her hotel, once more she hurried to her room. Here was somewhat to be done. She knew the plot now—all was plain as to the intentions of Frederick in regard to the kingdom of Gretzhoffen and to the monarch who held the throne.

"Your majesty," she wrote in her rolling hand now. "The young American which is returned to your care at midnight tonight—has by chance learned of a plot to injure your majesty and to injure the kingdom of Gretzhoffen as well. Trust her to explain when opportunity shall come. Meantime have the word of one who is solicitous for your safety. Drink no wine. Beware."

Once more she telephoned to the bureau of telegraphs, called for a messenger, and sent her simple missive to the king.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Prisoner.

Having dispatched her messages, Kitty Gray sat alone once more in her room. There came to her mind once more the reflection that now she had not even one portion of the broken coin. As to that which had gone to the king, she felt fairly sure that she might regain it. As to that which had been taken from her by force by Count Frederick, she was far as ever from its possession.

"The simplest way is the best," said she once more. "I'll go back there again."

"I was not so fortunate as to find monsieur the count at home before," she explained to the attendants who met her at the door.

"Monsieur the count has gone out but now."

A sudden resolution came to Kitty's mind even as a sudden flush came to her cheek.

"So? Then I will wait his coming. If you please, the apartments of monsieur the count."

The man left her, and she closed the door. An instant later she was at work turning over the articles on the dresser, peering here and there, looking this way and that—and unsuccessfully.

But meantime the attendant who had left her, anxious to be of service to his master, sent out posthaste to summon Count Frederick to his return. He met the count himself, and yet another attendant, upon the point of entering the palace. The newcomer was talking to the count excitedly.

"Excellency, I tell you the woman is outwitting you. She sent her half the coin this very morning—sent it to the king by special messenger. I saw it—I felt it in the envelope. I am sure. There is some plot afoot. And I brought the news as soon as possible, but have searched for you long."

"Come," said Frederick, and he hastened the more when he met the messenger advising him of Kitty's presence in the palace.

Her search still uncompleted, Kitty heard footsteps approaching, and turned desperately like some trapped animal. There was no escape—the narrow window, as she knew, was two stories above the court below. And even as she stepped to the door she met there the smiling, sardonic face of Count Frederick himself.

"The honor is mine, mademoiselle!" said he with icy politeness. "True, I had not expected you."

Shamefaced, confused, for once unable to make any explanation, Kitty could but stand and stare at him. An instant later she heard the click of the lock and the passing of footsteps in the hall once more. She was alone! She was a prisoner!

She sat alone, helpless, unanswered in spite of her pounding on the door, her cries for help, until she was utterly weary—until the shades of night came.

She looked at her watch. The hour was approaching eleven. The great black and white ball was now in progress at the winter palace across the city.

She went to the window and looked out into the night. All the court was dark—save one window directly below her on the opposite side, fifteen feet below, ten feet across the narrow courtyard. Even as she looked down at it she saw a face thrust out—a face upturned towards her.

"Rouleau!" she exclaimed. "Can it be possible? Rouleau, help me! I am a prisoner here—they have locked me in—there is no way out. Help me!"

Rouleau's own presence in the palace she did not at the moment undertake to explain. As a matter of fact, he had but that day come in from the camp of the banditti, where he had been detained.

A. W. LEONARDSON CO. A. W. LEONARDSON CO.

Our July Clearance of Summer Merchandise Offer Many Money Savings This Week.

DRESS FABRICS

- 12 1/2c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....7 1/2c
- 15c and 19c Figured Batiste, clearance price.....10c
- 15c Dress Gingham, clearance price.....10c
- 15c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....10c
- 25c Figured Voiles, clearance price.....15c
- 25c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....15c
- 25c Butterfly Crepes, clearance price.....13c
- 35c Silk Stripe Voiles, clearance price.....25c
- 50c Voiles and Crepes, clearance price.....33c

Dresses!—Decisively Reduced

Women's and Misses' Dainty Summer Wash Dresses are going fast for but a fraction of actual values.

- $ 3.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$1.95
- $ 4.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$2.95
- $ 5.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$3.95
- $ 6.50 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$4.95
- $10.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$5.95
- $12.50 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$7.95
- $15.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$9.95

Waists!—Decisively Reduced

- $1.00 Waists, reduced to.....49c
- $1.25 Waists, reduced to.....79c
- $1.50 Waists, reduced to.....98c
- $2.00 Waists, reduced to.....$1.45
- $3.00 Waists, reduced to.....$1.95
- $4.50 Waists, reduced to.....$2.75

Suits!—Decisively Reduced

Women's Tailored Suits in medium weight that are most desirable for summer, are no win three lots for quick clearance.

- $15.00 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$5.95
- $19.75 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$7.50
- $25.00 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$9.75

Coats!—Decisively Reduced

Twenty Light Weight Summer Coats to be cleaned out for half price and less.

A Separate Coat is indispensable in this climate—you'll need one for your vacation trip, look them over.

- $ 5.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$1.95
- $10.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$4.95
- $12.50 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$5.95
- $15.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$7.95
- $22.50 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$9.95

Silk Dresses and Evening Gowns

- $ 8.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$4.95
- $10.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$5.95
- $12.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$7.95
- $15.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$9.95
- $17.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$12.50
- $22.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$14.75
- $35.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$19.50

A. W. LEONARDSON CO.
MARKET STREET CLEARFIELD, PA.

MOTHER'S PENSION VS CHILD POVERTY

(BY UNITED PRESS)
San Francisco, July 20.—Delegates from twenty-five states of the union which four years ago new nothing of the pensioning of mothers for the abolition of child-poverty, are today meeting in the first annual session of the National Mother's Convention at the Civic Auditorium. The subject of persons from all angles and particularly the mother and theory of the present law will be discussed.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

Gossip for Tonight's Tea Table

TUESDAY, JULY 20, 1915

Roy Jameson, of New York is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jameson on West Market street. Mr. Jameson is interested in the real estate business in New York.

J. J. Lancaster, of DuBois, was a business caller yesterday.

H. M. Fry, of Williamsport, had business in Clearfield Monday.

D. E. Brown, of Punxsutawney, is in town today.

Irwi F. Losch, of Cherry Tree, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday.

A. H. Rathwell, of Blue Ball, had business in Clearfield Monday.

Mrs. Tom Bowman left on the river line this morning for Leocotes Mills where she will spend a few days visiting her sisters.

M. A. Deitrich, of Patton had business in Clearfield yesterday.

John Dugosh and wife of Grass Flat were Clearfield visitors Monday.

S. O. Chase who has been visiting relatives in Clearfield for the past few days left yesterday for his home in Jersey Shore.

A. H. McKenzie, Mrs. J. W. Rubley and Miss L. F. Rubley, of Kuthaus spent yesterday in Clearfield.

W. H. Mussehanan, of Philipsburg, was a business visitor in Clearfield Monday.

E. E. Hyles, of Bigler, spent yesterday in Clearfield.

Wm. Lester and wife, of Arcadia, were Clearfield callers on Monday.

J. W. Crawford, of Jersey Shore had business in Clearfield yesterday.

Roy Johnson, of Eighth street has purchased a new Metz automobile through the Lee garage.

M. W. Williams, of Clearfield, left on the 3:40 train Sunday for Strasburg, Ohio, where he will assist B. F. Barkey in the building of a new brick works.

R. M. Dodson, of Curwensville, and H. A. Hunter, route managers of the International Correspondence school motored to Clearfield Monday.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

CLEVELAND TO HAVE RESEARCH INSTITUTE

(BY UNITED PRESS)
Cleveland, O., July 20.—Important discoveries leading to methods of combating diseases resulting from bad teeth are expected to follow the establishment here of the Research Institute of the National Dental Association. To carry forward the work an endowment fund of $1,000,000 will be raised; $54,000 has already been secured, mainly from dentists.

The purpose of the institute, according to incorporation papers recently filed, is the "finding and establishing of means for the relief of mankind from the indirect and direct ravages of dental and oral diseases; to support, establish and encourage investigation, research and discovery of knowledge and the dissemination thereof to the improvement of mankind."

It is the plan of the association to assist financially researchers that are being contemplated or carried on in various parts of the country by those who have become especially proficient in certain lines and are confronted by problems they are trying to solve. Research work will also be done here in Cleveland.

Valuable contributions from the investigators on the following topics are expected: The relation of mouth infection to diseases of various parts of the body; the relation of saliva to conditions of decay of teeth; the causative factors of pyorrhea; and better combinations of metals for filling cavities.

COLUMBUS FIGHTING SMOKE NUISANCE

(BY UNITED PRESS)
Columbus, O., July 20.—Educators persuasion and finally compulsion are the methods being used by the Columbus smoke inspection department to abate the smoke and soot nuisance. The department is teaching factory managers who permit their smokestacks to fill the air with tons of unconsumed fuel that they are wasting money; that proper appliance and firing will cut down their fuel bill and keep the surrounding air pure; and that obnoxious in compliance with suggestions will be met with compulsion.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

MAY TRY TO TURN SWINDLE INTO BIG BONANZA

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—Although the appraisers who went to Mexico and looked over the property of the International Lumber and Dry Goods Company have reported that the assets of the concern were $735,000 instead of $27,000,000 as claimed by the promoters who are now in jail, the stockholders are still hopeful. Many of those who brought shares in the big $6,000,000 swindle believe that the fraud can be changed into a bonanza, and that all of the money invested can be returned with handsome dividends under the right management.

John O. Sheatz, the receiver, will later report as to the advisability of continuing the Mexican plantation as a going concern. He has looked over the ground with the appraisers. It is understood that his opinion will be based largely on the possibilities of early peace in Mexico. With efficient management under peaceful conditions, many stockholders believe the plantation can be worked with success.

Four former officials and promoters of the bankrupt development are now in the Eastern penitentiary. They are John Markley, Isaiah B. Miller, A. G. Stewart and Charles H. McMahon. They were convicted in the federal court here of defrauding stockholders through fraudulent statements of the development work being done on the plantation and the earning capacity of the concern. It was brought out at the trial that dividends to the amount of $1,500,000 had been paid out of the capital stock and not from the earnings.

A half million rubber trees were valued in the company's pamphlets at two and a half millions. According to the appraisers, the entire 600 acre rubber plantation is worth just $100. The principle assets of the company are the 292,544 acre San Pablo plantation, at Campeche, Mexico and a henequen field covering 18,625 acres. Although the promoters claimed they had expended four millions on their lumber tract, and placed a value upon it of thirteen millions, the appraisers place a value of one dollar an acre on the tract.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNTIES FREED FROM QUARANTINE

Department of Agriculture Lifts Ban on Movement of Stock

Fayette county is freed from quarantine for the foot-and-mouth-disease by an order effective July 12. This order also places Jefferson County in the restricted area where the quarantine regulations are the most stringent of all. There is now no closed area in the State of Pennsylvania, and the only exposed area is that portion of Philadelphia County between the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers south of Washington Avenue.

Philadelphia. The hog and sheep division of the West Philadelphia Stock yards, Allegheny County will be exception of the Pittsburgh Union Stock Yards, Wayne Township in Erie County, the Columbus Township in Warren county, are in the modified area. In the restricted area are the rest of Erie and Allegheny counties, the whole of Berks, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Jefferson, Lebanon, Montgomery, Schuylkill and Westmoreland counties. Lancaster County with the exception of a part of the Lancaster Stock yards, the cattle division of the West Philadelphia Stock yards, and all of Philadelphia County with the exception of the exposed area already described. The Pittsburgh Union Stock yards are also restricted area, but it is provided that the yards may be used for handling live stock for immediate slaughter only.

WALLACETON TABERNACLE MEETING IS SUCCESSFUL

The tabernacle service at Wallaceton was attended Sunday evening more than 600 people. On Monday evening there was also a large crowd. Tonight J. H. Deibel, of outstate will preach.

CHARTER NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the Governor of Pennsylvania on the nineteenth day of August 1915, by Warren Partridge, W. O. Hoover and James P. O'Laughlin under the act of assembly entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations," approved April 23, 1874, and the supplements thereto, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called the Glen Hope Light, Heat & Power company, the character and object of which is manufacturing and supplying light, heat and power, by electricity, to the public in the Borough of Glen Hope, Clearfield county, Pennsylvania and to such persons partnerships and corporations residing therein or adjacent thereto, as may desire the same, and for these purposes to have, possess, and enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of said act of assembly and supplements thereto.

MURRAY & O'LAUGHLIN
J 19 26-Aug 2 Solicitors

CURWENSVILLE

Edited by G. F. Kittleberger, Jr.

Lowell K. Hays, who is employed at Snow Shoe by the Penn. Pu Service, spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hayes of Bridgeport.

C. E. Patton who has been in Sykesville looking after the interests of the Curwensville Construction, which is constructing the Municipal water works there, visited at his home here over Sunday.

Mother's meeting of the W. C. T. U. Thursday afternoon, July 22, at the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Esther Odell and sister of Juanita are visiting at the home of H. S. Eckert on Meadow Avenue.

Mrs. S. Canfield Wilson returned Saturday from Osceola after a day spent in conference with the other W. C. T. U. county officers to arrange for the county convention.

Roy Strickland, who has spent the past several weeks in Nant-y-Glo, is visiting with his parents in South Curwensville. Mr. Strickland went to Nant-y-Glo to play ball and seems to have made good. The following is taken from the Johnstown Democrat.

Nant-y-Glo, July 12.—Trailing the rear of Big Bend by one run in Saturday's game on the local diamond, Strickland, Nant-y-Glo's moundsman, smashed out a home run with one on in the last half of the ninth, winning the game for the locals, 7 to 6. One man was down at the time.

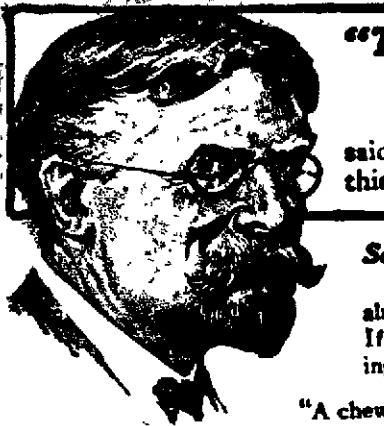

In the box score Strickland was credited with two runs, 1 hit, 1 put out, 6 assists, no errors, 2 stolen bases, one base on balls and nine strike outs.

UNIQUE TEST OF WORK. MEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Unique Test of Workmen's Compensation

Olympia, Wash., July 20.—A suit that will test the limits of workmen's compensation will be argued here today. Whether employers are liable in cases where outside influences cause the death of their employees is the problem the Thurston County Court has been called upon to decide. Attorney Thomas P. Fisk will argue today for the families of the trainmen who, while working for the Simpson Logging Company, were ambushed and shot by a disgruntled and discharged employee. They were running a logging train in the regular line of duty and admittedly did not contribute toward the shooting and injury. The question involved is merely one of whether or not the Industrial Insurance fund in this state protects employees from attacks of injuries arising entirely outside the work they are doing, but to which risks the employee is subjected.

In its far-reaching effect the present suit is regarded as extremely important by members of the industrial commission.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"
said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Says the Editor:
"A political editorial to write and almost time for the presses to close. If ever I need calm, clear, quick thinking I need it now."

"A chew of PICNIC TWIST will lay me up to just the right pitch and there won't be any letdown afterwards."

The big thing about PICNIC TWIST is the naturally sweet, long-lasting satisfaction of the mild, mellow part of the leaf. You can chew more PICNIC TWIST than you can of a dark, rank, "heavy" tobacco, and have no "come-back" on your nerves from it.

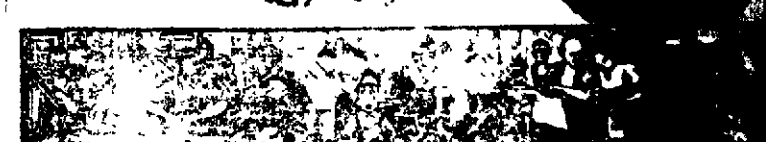

That is what men all over the country are finding out about this convenient, soft twist that's as mild as tobacco can be.

Picnic Twist CHEWING TOBACCO

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"

It comes, also, in economical, freshness-preserving drums of 11 twists

Exported by J. W. Brown Co.

FLORIDA MASONS AT SCHOOL

(BY UNITED PRESS)
West Palm Beach, Fla., July 20.—Masons from the lodges along the East coast of Florida are gathered here today to attend instruction classes in degrees by the Master Mason Lodges.

In order that they might fight out their divorce suit, an Oklahoma judge has allowed a couple to mortgage their farm. Naturally, the lawyers did not object.

OLANTA

Miss Cora Glenn has returned to her home in Altoona, where she will teach this year.

Mrs. Joseph Dunlap of town is ill at her sister's in Woodland.

H. L. Bowman, of Clearfield, called at the home of P. M. Woods while on a motor trip Sunday afternoon.

Olanta played two games Saturday winning both. Scores, first game, Olanta, 4; Boardman, 1. Second game, Olanta 16, Faunce 5.

The Mt. Zion ladies O. A. B. C. will be entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. S. Bowman.

CLASSIFIED

First insertion 15c—Each additional insertion 10c for 25 words or less. Each additional word in per word no insertion.

POSITIONS WANTED

No charge will be made to persons applying for positions through these columns. They must want ads.

HELP WANTED

WANTED—Position as housekeeper. Estey Putty, Woodland, Pa. 6-14-15 or, in town or near town. Inquire.

WANTED—Young married man wants work. Can run auto and do some repair work. A. J. H., 416 Dufay street. H. & C. phone 516-2.

WANTED—Washing to do at home or will go to the house for any kind of days' work. Call H. & C. phone 241-2.

Wanted: Position as housekeeper or will go out by the day. Write Box 5, Woodland, Pa.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—Acres 3 deck porch, even. Good as new. All pans, fixtures, trough, etc. Also 5 sheep cages and 2 dozen candy dishes. Will be sold cheap. Apply 215 Nichols St. 215.

FOR SALE—30 acre farm on hill under cultivation, one-half century growth timber. In Biggs township, 3 1/2 miles from Clearfield. 8 room house in good condition, new barn and out buildings. Water system. Will either sell or exchange for town property. For terms etc., apply to William Wisor, Route 5, Clearfield.

FOR SALE—150,000 feet of hemlock lumber suitable for all building purposes at very reasonable prices. For Dr. C. E. Chase 4-405.

Brick House for Sale

Corner Seventh and Dorcy streets. Concrete walk, curb and cellar. Electric light. 7 rooms and bath. For price and terms see Louisa F. Hapfer, 413 Dorcy street. 5-25-15

The natives of Glen have a house of odd numbers. They never build a house or a temple with five, seven nine or eleven windows.

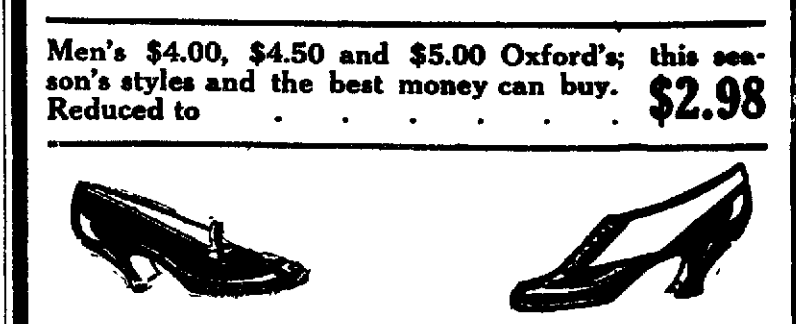

JACOBSON'S

Furniture, Rugs, Stoves and Household Goods

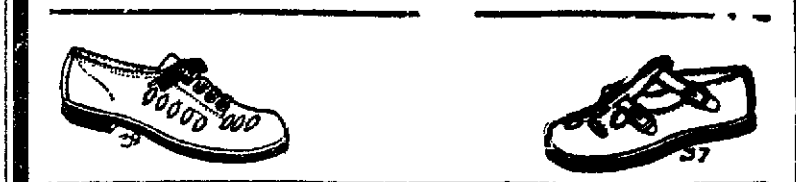

—AT—
POPULAR PRICES
—AT—
JACOBSON'S
212 REED STREET

Big Bargains in Men's and Women's Low Shoes

Men's $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00 Oxford's; this season's styles and the best money can buy. $2.98 Reduced to

All of our Women's $3.50 and $4.00 Pumps; in all styles, now $2.48
Women's $3.00 Pumps, at $1.98
Special lot of Women's and Children's White High and Low Shoes, at 98c

Men's, Women's and Children's fennis Shoes, Bare-foot Sandals and Outing Shoes all at bargain prices

Brown's Boot Shop
CLEARFIELD, PA.

FLEGAL'S All Straw Hats at Half Price All Panama at 25 per cent off FLEGAL'S

State Department Will Investigate Attack on Orduna

Treasury Officials Instructed to Obtain Statements From the Company's Officials and Passengers

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE MAKES PROTEST

LLOYD-GEORGE IS MAN OF HOUR IN EYES OF BRITISH

Minister of Munitions Settles Cardiff Colliery Strike in Quick Time

Terms of Settlement Not Yet Made Public but Men Will Return to Work Without Further Delay, Says Report from Center of Recent Disturbance.

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Cardiff, July 20.—The great strike of the South Wales coal miners that threatened to interfere seriously with the production of war munitions for the English armies, has been settled, it was announced here this evening. Strike leaders made the announcement after a short conference this afternoon with minister of munitions, Lloyd George and other members of the cabinet.

The terms have not yet been made public, but it is understood that they are of such a nature that the executive council of the miner's federation accepted them without further delay.

The settlement of the labor dispute, the most serious domestic trouble that has confronted the English government since the beginning of the war, is regarded here as personal triumph for Lloyd George, whose home is in Wales. Lloyd George came to Cardiff last night. He is today the man of the hour in London.

TRYING HARD TO END STRIKE OF WELSHMEN

(By United Press)

Cardiff, July 19.—Important new proposals by the government to end the South Wales coal strike brought the meeting of the executive council of the miners to an end at two o'clock this afternoon. What these proposals were none of the members would say. The officials prepared to leave at once for London, but received another message from President Walter Runciman of the board of trade saying their presence was not required. Another meeting of the council was then called at three P. M.

GREEK PARLIAMENT WILL URGUE WAR STAND

Special to the Progress

Athens, July 20.—The chamber of deputies meets today, after two postponements, and this event promises to bring the nation to its ultimate stand in the war situation. With Venizelos a helmsman, backed by a tremendous majority of the chamber, there can be no great delay in declaring Greece ally of the Quadruple Entente. The Hellenic mind is made up, and nothing can stem the popular demand for immediate participation in the war. The Greek army, trained and hardy fighters, is anxious to get into the campaign against Turkey. A hundred thousand men are in training, and the reserves have been notified of the government's intention to call them to the colors.

Mrs. C. C. Owens and daughter Miss Alice Owens, of New York, who are visiting relatives in Curwensville were in Clearfield shopping today and went to Woodland to spend a few days with relatives there before returning to Curwensville.

All silk crepe-de-chene waists, in recent styles $2.50 values at $1.98 Mirkins.

600 MACHINISTS AT REMINGTON PLANT OUT

By United Press
Bridgeport July 20 Six hundred machinists employed in the Remington Arms plant, struck here at noon today. There was little disturbance. The men were on the walk out.

(By United Press)

Washington, July 20.—The state department began an investigation today of the Orduna incident. It asked the treasury department to secure through customs officials affidavits by the Cunard's crew and passengers and such other information as is available concerning the reported submarine attack on the vessel. This followed receipt of a letter from W. C. Thompson, of Chicago, an official of the federal government, an Orduna passenger, referring to the affair. Thompson did not claim to have personal knowledge of the torpedo attack but said he was awakened in his state room by the firing of shots presumably from the submarine. Secretary Lansing said his department was still without information to substantiate the story that torpedo was fired at the Orduna without warning.

Mr. Thompson is a member of the federal industrial relations commissions and was returning on the Orduna from Great Britain where he had been pursuing investigations of industrial conditions at the instance of the government. Upon his arrival at New York he stated to newspaper men that he would make the attack the subject of a report to the government.

It is believed here that if the statements obtained by the treasury department coincide with those made by officers of the Orduna and passengers on board the vessel on her arrival, the state department will ask the German government to explain the attack.

WELL KNOWN MISSIONARY WORKER DIES SUDDENLY

Amos Cravenar Had Many Friends in Clearfield County

Many friends of the American Sunday school union will regret to learn of the sudden death of Amos O. Cravenar who has been a solicitor for the S. S. union for 13 years. His death occurred suddenly while on his way to take the train at Brockwayville a few days ago.

FINAL MEETING OF THE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Chamber of Commerce Membership Hustlers Report Tonight

The final meeting of the members of the campaign committee which has had charge of the chamber of commerce canvass will be held tonight, when the work of the past week will be reviewed and a complete report submitted. The chamber of commerce officials urge a full attendance at this meeting so that the campaign can be closed definitely tonight.

RED MEN BEGIN WORK FOR REUNION IN AUGUST

By order of the tribe, the Red Men will meet every Thursday evening at the club rooms after July 23, until the reunion which will be held in the Clearfield driving park August 6. The object of meeting every week to transact various business relative to the reunion. Every member of the lodge is requested to be present and some very important business is expected to come up at these meetings.

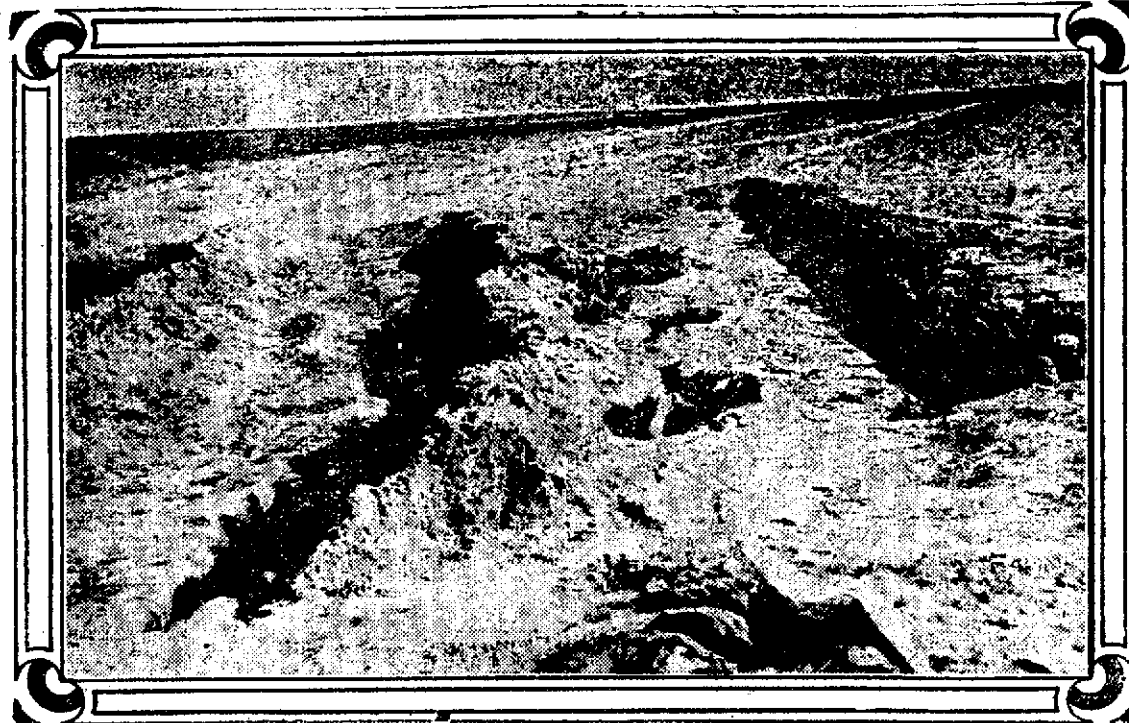

MEMBERSHIP CARDS READY

Membership cards containing the name of the member, firm or individual, and bearing the official seal of the chamber of commerce are now ready for distribution. Members whose cards have not been issued are requested to call up the secretary, who will see that prompt delivery is made.

Comet Goes Round Sun Today

Special to the Progress
Berkeley, Calif., July 20.—According to the calculations made by Prof. Crawford at the student's observatory, Mollish's comet, which has been visible from the earth for several months, will make its perihelion passage around the sun today.

Attractive caps, with veils. Special for 59 cents, at Mirkins.

HOW THE RUSSIANS ARE FIGHTING BEFORE WARSAW

The fighting in Poland before Warsaw has resolved itself into a situation similar to that on the Western front. The Russians have fortified themselves behind a resistance in their advance when they encounter these protected positions. The men shown here are members of the famous Ponogorijski regiment of Moscow, reputed to be Russia's best fighters. They are in the advanced trenches on the Polish frontier. Their position is officially described as "somewhere along the Polish front."

CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO PROVIDE FOR 100 NEW SUBS

National Defense League Enters Campaign for Undersea Boats For the United States

Vast Number of Deadly Craft Necessary for Coast Protection, and at Honolulu and Manila Advance Bases, According to Authorities of the League.

Washington, July 20.—Congress should appropriate for one hundred submarines at the next session, according to a statement issued here today by the National Defense League.

"A recent account, widely printed by the press, that the general navy board will recommend appropriations for at least thirty submarines and that these will be included in the naval estimates to be sent to the next congress by secretary Daniels, is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough," according to the league's statement.

"We must make provisions for more than three times that number of undersea boats," declares the statement.

The league has launched a campaign throughout the country to arouse public sentiment for one hundred submarines in the next naval bill. It will agitate the question of submarines until Congress convenes next December.

In this campaign the League will have the support of powerful members of Congress. A letter received by the league today from representative William D. Stephens, of Los Angeles, who has recently been in the Hawaiian Islands investigating the defenses of Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, said that Mr. Stephens will demand at the next congress appropriations for one hundred submarines. The California Congressman's letter bears great weight because he is one of the leading members of the house naval affairs committee, and was largely responsible at the last congress in forcing an increase in the number in the last naval bill. Secretary Daniels having recommended eight to sixteen, the number in the last naval bill, Secretary Daniels having recommended eight of the boats but congress, largely through the efforts of Mr. Stephens and other Congressmen who are members of the League, doubling that number. Mr. Stephens wrote from Honolulu: "I am more than ever convinced that the United States should have another hundred submarines, at least fifty of them stationed on the Pacific coast, more battleships, and several battle cruisers, besides a sufficient number of auxiliary vessels."

"The United States now has a total of 70 submarines, built or building, but many of those now on commission are obsolete and practically worthless. If the congress will provide at the next session 100 new submarines, with the submarines now authorized, or building, with those that are in commission, which are really efficient and seaworthy, the navy will then have a fleet of approximately 150 undersea boats that will be ample to protect the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and the Panama Canal," is the assertion of the League.

"While most of the new submarines should be coast and harbor defense vessels, a suitable proportion should be sea-going craft with a cruising radius of at least 3,000 miles, a radius large enough to enable the boats to be shifted from coast to coast line through the Panama Canal, and from the Pacific coast to Alaska or Hawaii under their own power."

DEER HEADS REPRESENT THE PROWESS OF LOCAL NIMRODS

Six Specimens from Crystal Springs Camp on Display Locally

The mounted heads of last year's catch of deer of the Crystal Springs hunting camp are on exhibit in the Rosser furniture store window. The total number comprises a 3-prong buck caught by Wayne Ammerman, spike buck, William Boyce, 4-prong buck M. T. Bowman, 4-prong buck, F. G. Harris, spike buck Dr. J. C. Nugent, and a 5-prong buck by C. S. Schoff.

The display is very interesting and attractive and represents a good record in the most attractive and fascinating of the wild wood sports. The heads were mounted by Charles H. Eldon, the leading taxidermist of Williamsport.

PENN PUBLIC TO FURNISH POWER TO GLEN RICHEY

Village Will Have Modern Equipment Following Installation Now in Progress

Will Cut in on Philipsburg High Tension Line, Furnishing Current for Light Heat and Power—Snow Shoe Also to be Supplied from Philipsburg.

Electrical improvements of importance to Glen Richey will be installed by the Penn Public Service company immediately at Glen Richey. A step-down station will be installed on the high tension line from the Philipsburg plant to furnish light heat and power. One of the principal users of the power supply will be the pumping station which supplies Glen Richey with its water.

The moving out of the Paele, Peacock and Kerr Coal company to a situation across the hill where they can secure better openings necessitates this installation as the coal company formerly pumped the water by steam for the town.

The step-down station will be installed on the high tension circuit which makes a loop from Philipsburg passing through Osceola, Houtzdale, Madiera, Boardman, Curwensville and Clearfield and back to Philipsburg where the central power plant is located. The line passes near Glen Richey and thus affords the much needed power supply.

The high tension circuit carries a voltage of 11,000 which will in a short time be raised to 22,000 volts to supply the increased demand for power which is developing in Clearfield county. This voltage will be cut down to 2,200 for use at Glen Richey to run the motor driven pump which draws the water from an artesian well and stores it in a reservoir for the town use. The voltage for electric light will be taken from this secondary line by individual transformers.

Another improvement which the Penn Public company has under the course of construction is the power line which they are running from the high tension line at Winburne to supply Snow Shoe with power for its mines and light for the town.

Vessels of a suitable proportion should be sea-going craft with a cruising radius of at least 3,000 miles, a radius large enough to enable the boats to be shifted from coast to coast line through the Panama Canal, and from the Pacific coast to Alaska or Hawaii under their own power."

HAPPY BOYS OFF TODAY FOR CAMP LIFE AT BO NARR

Seventeen Happy Youngsters Make Up Clearfield's Contingent For Up-River Trip

Will be Joined by Youngsters of DuBois and Punxsutawney for Outing Under the Leadership of Officers of the Y. M. C. A.

A truck load of boys and camp equipment started from the Y. M. C. A. this morning for what promises to be a delightful ten day's outing to camp Bo Narr, near Lumber City. The camp will be in charge of leaders from Clearfield, DuBois and Punxsutawney. The spot selected is an ideal one with everything so arranged that the boys can enjoy every phase of camp life.

Five tents were taken from here, and with DuBois and Punxsutawney delegations it is expected that camp Bo Narr will be quite a city of tents. There were 17 boys and 5 leaders from Clearfield. The number from the other two places is not known but it is expected that a large crowd will be present.

The leaders will be: first half, W. Irving Lewis, Clearfield, second half, C. H. Graef, DuBois treasurer, C. H. Manley, Punxsutawney, bible teacher, N. J. Mecklem, Clearfield, commissary, E. B. Hagaman, Punxsutawney, athletics and aquatics F. H. Schantz, DuBois.

The boys from Clearfield were: John Musser, Fred Musser, John Howe, Lawrence Howe, Theodore Kurtz, Jack Kurtz, Robert Kurtz, Robert Ferguson, Chester Cole, Jack Mohney, Jr., John Martin, Jr., Way Powell, Charles Beahan, Nathan Smith, Gurney Smith, William Betts, Justin Kuhn with W. I. Lewis, J. L. Henderson, H. C. Whiteside, Arthur McQuillen and David Ferguson as leaders. Each leader will have charge of seven boys.

YOUNG COUPLE ARE TO BE MARRIED THIS EVENING

Miss Pickles to Become Bride of Clarence Brigham

A small wedding will take place this evening at six o'clock at the New Baptist church when Miss Lois Pickles daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickles of Walnut street, will be united in marriage to Clarence Brigham, of Clearfield. The marriage ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Norman J. Mecklem and will be attended by the immediate relatives and friends.

After the wedding a wedding dinner will be served to the bridal party at the home of the bride-elect on Walnut street. The couple will go to house keeping on Bridge street immediately.

The bride-elect was a member of the junior class of the Clearfield high school last year and has many friends who wish her every happiness. The bridegroom-elect is an employee of the Orcutt garage and has a host of friends in the automobile circle who wish him a joyous journey in the new life.

BRIDGE CLUB TO MEET

The Hospital bridge club will meet with Mrs. F. G. Smith, Wednesday, July 21 at two o'clock. Please inform hostess if you will be present.

Germans Sweeping All Before Them In Warsaw Drive

Successful Everywhere Along 100 Mile Battle Front, Reports Seem to Agree

IMPORTANT BALTIC SEAPORT IS TAKEN

BERLIN, JULY 20.—WHAT APPEARS TO BE THE FINAL STAGE OF THE WARSAW DRIVE HAS BEEN BEGUN BY GENERAL VON BULOW'S GREAT ARMY, WHICH IS SWEEPING ALL BEFORE IT ALONG A BATTLE FRONT 100 MILES LONG. IN THE FACE OF STRONG RESISTANCE BY THE RUSSIAN ARMY WHICH HAS TAKEN EVERY FOOT OF THE GROUND.

Berlin, July 20.—Sweeping down on Warsaw from the north, the German army under General Gallwitz, has forced the Russians to retreat across the Narew river at several points, and taken up positions less than 40 miles from the Polish capital. The official statement from the war office today, the first it has issued since Sunday, declared that the great one thousand mile drive to squeeze the Russians out of Warsaw is moving forward with amazing speed. The Slavs are retreating in the Riga region.

General von Hindenberg has captured over 100 officers and nearly 10,000 men. Between the Bug and Vistula rivers General Mackensen took over 16,000 prisoners in the last 48 hours. Prisoners in all sectors total more than 50,000.

One wing of General von Bulow's army has captured the Baltic seaport of Windau commanding the railway leading to Riga Northwest of Warsaw the Russians are falling back on Novo Georgevsk, one of the main defenses of Warsaw, 20 miles from it.

RUSSIANS ADMIT REVERSES

Petrograd, July 20.—The war office admitted today that the Russians have been driven from their position and forced to retire at a half dozen points under heavy pressure from the German army driving against Warsaw. In the extreme north the Germans advanced toward the great naval base of Riga and have occupied Tukum.

North of Warsaw von Hindenberg's center has captured the village of Toremly and is engaged in continuous assaults against the Russian line north of the Narew river. Southeast of Warsaw the Russians have been forced to evacuate Krasnosaf, eight miles south of Lublin-Cholm railway, toward which General Mackensen's army is attempting to batter its way.

North of Lemberg the armies of General Ivanoff have been driven east by superior forces of Austrians. At several other points, however, the Russians are maintaining themselves against the heaviest attacks and are hurling the enemy back with severe losses.

EMPLOYEES JOURNEY TO PHILIPSBURG FOR PICNIC

Annual Affair of Penn Public Company Takes Place Tomorrow

About 250 employees of the Penn Public Service company with their wives and friends will hold their annual picnic at Philipsburg Wednesday. A large number will be present from Clearfield, Indiana and Philipsburg, and other towns where the company operates will send equally large delegations.

The Clearfield party will go to Philipsburg on the 1:15 train and will be taken from the station at Philipsburg to the Philipsburg athletic park on a special trolley.

This is the second picnic of its kind and is expected to excel last year's picnic in every way.

A special feature of the outing in the afternoon will be the "fight to a finish" baseball game between Mr. Brohl's champion Clearfield team and Mr. Pearce's invincible Philipsburg outfit. All the Clearfield employees are buying megaphones to yell their team to victory.

After the picnicers have enjoyed their basket dinner they will spend the evening dancing to the music of a large orchestra which has been secured for the occasion.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS TO PICNIC AT GOLDEN ROD

A meeting of Miss Carrie Burkett Smith's Sunday school class of girls of the Presbyterian Sunday school has been called for this evening at the home of Miss Smith on Fourth and Locust streets to arrange for a picnic of the class at Camp Golden Rod next Tuesday. The Sunday school class is composed of about 20 members all of whom are earnestly requested by Miss Smith to be present for the arrangements.

CABINET MEETING MOST IMPORTANT SINCE CIVIL WAR

Reply to German Demands Discussed by President and His Advisers Today

Serious Expressions Following Meeting Indicate Crisis in Relations With Germany — Secretary Spends Hour With President

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Washington, July 20.—In a cabinet meeting regarded as one of the most important since the Civil War, President Wilson and his advisers today practically determined American attitude toward Germany. For nearly two hours the President and the members of his ministry went over the note drafted by Secretary Lansing in reply to the foreign office's last rejection of German submarine warfare. Secretary Redfield was the only absent member.

The serious expressions worn by President and his cabinet indicated the gravity of the situation which was felt by all. Before the meeting chief executive and Secretary Lansing had an hour's private talk at the white house looking over the situation.

Reported submarine attack on Cunard liner Orduna with American passengers on board also was taken into the situation. Secretary Lansing announced that federal investigation of the incident had been ordered through the treasury department.

FRISCO STAKES $100,000 TO WIN $4,000,000

Special to the Progress

San Francisco, July 20.—This city is undertaking a campaign of "frisco finance," in which it will spend $100,000 on the chance of getting $4,000,000. The four millions represents money impounded through injunction litigation. The opening gun has already been sounded, in the water rate injunction cases, which have caused the accumulation of something over two millions. Eight of these injunction cases are pending and trial has begun this month. There are two gas rate injunctions unsettled which are responsible for the accumulation of a million dollars. One electric and one telephone injunction suit are also pending. The hundred thousand which the city is plunging represents the amount that will be expended in appropriations of the utilities mentioned in order to strike a rate-making body. The cases are all before H. M. Wright, S. standing master in chancery. His findings will be submitted to the U. S. district court for final adjudication.

The Evanston, Ill., public library is lending pianola rolls; another at Madison, Wis., owns and operates a motion picture shown in Edinburg, Minn. There is a play-room and gymnasium and the library at Bingham, N. T., conducts a technical school.

Advertise in the Progress

INFECTION ENDANGERED

LEO FRANK'S CHANCES

By United Press
Milledgeville, July 20.—Sentence set in seriously this afternoon in Leo M. Frank's case. His temperature jumped from 101 to 101.4. The doctors state that he is still hopeful.

Entered at the Post Office at Clearfield, Pennsylvania, as second class mail matter.

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS is now a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national institution whose reports govern the sale of millions of dollars of advertising space annually. Upon the completion of the first official audit, a full detailed report will be published.

A hundred thousand dollars every year is a considerable sum, when one considers it is the annual budget of the county upon which the happiness and contentment of so many people depend. The men who control that fund, and who are burdened with the manifold duties and obligations of action, judgment and decision its expenditure require, should be successful, not failures. And their success as a farmer or a merchant or a tradesman is not of necessity the only kind of success they should bring to the office they seek.

Attractive auto caps, with veils.
Special for 59 cents, at Mirkins.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

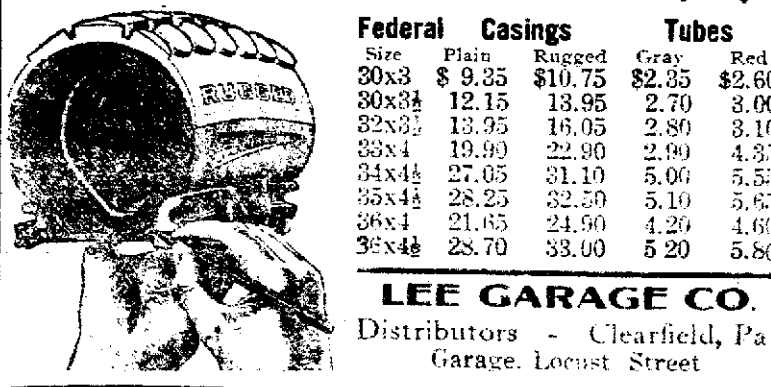

THE DIAMOND BRAND.
 Ladies! Ask your Druggist for
 Chichester's Diamond Brand
 Pills in Red and Gold Metallic
 Cases sealed with Eric Ruden.
 Take no other. Say of your Druggist, Ask for CHICHESTER'S
DIAMOND BRAND PILLS, for 25 years the best. Good better. Always true.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE

SUNDERLAND & LOGAN. Props
Harder's Old Stand, rear of Alle gheny house

"CLEARFIELD'S PIONEER SAVINGS BANK"

The Clearfield National Bank,
"The Bank of Service"

The County National Bank of Clearfield, Pa.

LEE GARAGE CO.
Distributors - Clearfield, Pa
Garage Locust Street

THE BROKEN COIN

A Story of Mystery and Adventure
By EMERSON HOUGH
From the Scenario by
GRACE CUNARD

Copyright, 1912, by
EMERSON HOUGH

SYNOPSIS.

Kitty Gray, newspaper woman, finds in a shop half of a broken coin, the mutilated inscription on which arouses her curiosity and leads her, at the cost of her managing editor, to the discovery of the truth about the coin. She is then arrested by the police and taken to the county jail, where she meets the Count of Gretzhoff, who is the real owner of the coin. The story follows the adventures of the two characters as they try to solve the mystery of the coin.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XI.

The King of Gretzhoff.

"Your majesty does me honor."
"It was with simple dignity that the young American girl spoke these words to the monarch in whose presence she found herself fresh from her adventures."

"We could not too much honor so charming representative of your great country, my dear young lady," said Michael.

"Do not misunderstand me, your majesty," resumed the young woman. "It is more than possible I have been brought before you under false pretenses. I am not a person of rank, and indeed but a prisoner taken yonder by outlaws. But for the wit of my servant I think I might have been held for a ransom."

"It were large ransom would be fit for such hostage as yourself, mademoiselle. Whatever it was it would have been paid, had we but known!"

"I thank you, sire. Perhaps there will be no future need. In sooth, from the way the handkerchief looked on together of our party, I would rather think he would prefer him to myself as hostage."

"Whom do you mean?"

"The Count Frederick, sire."

"Again the Count Frederick! He seems always to come into my affairs. The annoyance in the king's face was unmistakable."

"He has been much concerned in my own."

"How, mademoiselle?"

"I must explain. Sire, I came to your country only in my professional capacity—I had no more urgent errand than to find the half of a certain missing coin. The other half had come into my possession by chance. It was my fancy."

"What, a broken coin? You interest me, mademoiselle. I felt from the first moment that eventually we would find some common ground of interest. A coin—a broken coin—I know of some such thing myself. There are current stories about it. See, I have it, for my good friend Frederick seems for some strange reason to have a fancy for it himself. Would you like, then, to see it?"

Kitty's eyes flashed in eagerness.

"Above all things, sire! It would complete my happiness to see it."

"Then you shall, assuredly."

He bowed in somewhat adrope gallantry as she extended her hand toward the pudgy palm in which lay the object which for her held such interest. In a glance she saw the identity of the missing half. The remaining words of the inscription—they were there, she was sure. "Torture chamber—treasure of the king!" it was plain to her. These two pieces of metal joined would represent a story worth the having.

"Do you not desire it, then?" The voice of the monarch carried a certain reproach.

"Desire it, your majesty! I should desire nothing so much in all the world. With both halves in my hand—sire, I should feel that the world was mine."

"Why not gratify that wish then, mademoiselle? Listen, Count Frederick desired this very trinket—for a lady, he said. Here is a lady who desires it for herself. Why should we not give it her—why should we not have right as good as his?"

"You cannot mean it for me?"

"But yes, precisely! And listen, my dear young lady. There is something about this broken coin which begins to annoy me. Count Frederick is always referring to it for one reason or another—he has some motive which I cannot divine. Now, of late I have had abundant troubles, many persons who importune me. In these serious times, the people being so discontented, we have matters of more importance than to trifle with this trinket, as I say. You desire it. It bores me. Who better than yourself should own it if you like?"

Kitty stood looking at him, scarce believing what he said. King Michael went out.

"Two things interest me today, my dear lady. First, how to quiet my people, the second, to discover some fashion which shall keep you here in our own country, interested and useful. I am convinced of your own wisdom, your own justice—your own experience in your land as to law and liberty and justice. Sometimes out of the mouth of a woman—a lady of rank, of experience—you might learn the better how to carry on the duties of a state."

"And the duties of the state would dispose your majesty warmly to the good of his people?"

"Precisely. It is as I would have said it, mademoiselle. You Americans are extraordinary!"

Kitty took from his hand the broken bit of metal and examined it thoughtfully.

"I thank you more than I can tell, your majesty," said she, soberly. "It shall be my pleasure to find out for your people the unexplained message of this coin."

hall, announcing the approach of a servant. An official of the palace entered and stood motionless near the door.

"What then, Andreas?"

"The Count Frederick of Gretzhoff, the Count Sachio of Grahaffen."

"Let them enter, Andreas."

Both gentlemen bowed deeply as they entered and each kissed the royal hand respectfully. Kitty ignored Count Sachio and bowed but coldly to Count Frederick.

Count Frederick, in whose mind seemed to linger but scant remembrance of any unpleasant scenes in which he had figured, smiled now, and after the American fashion, as he faded, held out his hand.

Kitty could not refuse it. Quickly she shifted the broken bit of coin from her right hand to her left—quickly, but not so quickly as to escape the keen eyes of the man who faced her now.

"Count Sachio, you are welcome from your kingdom to ours. I believe you have never heard of the young American of distinction who has come among us of late—your have not met?"

Kitty looked calmly at the count and made no reply.

"Pas encore, votre majeste," replied Sachio in the common language used for such hostage as yourself, mademoiselle. Whatever it was it would have been paid, had we but known!"

"I thank you, sire. Perhaps there will be no future need. In sooth, from the way the handkerchief looked on together of our party, I would rather think he would prefer him to myself as hostage."

"Whom do you mean?"

"The Count Frederick, sire."

"Again the Count Frederick! He seems always to come into my affairs. The annoyance in the king's face was unmistakable."

"He has been much concerned in my own."

"How, mademoiselle?"

"I must explain. Sire, I came to your country only in my professional capacity—I had no more urgent errand than to find the half of a certain missing coin. The other half had come into my possession by chance. It was my fancy."

"What, a broken coin? You interest me, mademoiselle. I felt from the first moment that eventually we would find some common ground of interest. A coin—a broken coin—I know of some such thing myself. There are current stories about it. See, I have it, for my good friend Frederick seems for some strange reason to have a fancy for it himself. Would you like, then, to see it?"

Kitty's eyes flashed in eagerness.

"Above all things, sire! It would complete my happiness to see it."

"Then you shall, assuredly."

He bowed in somewhat adrope gallantry as she extended her hand toward the pudgy palm in which lay the object which for her held such interest. In a glance she saw the identity of the missing half. The remaining words of the inscription—they were there, she was sure. "Torture chamber—treasure of the king!" it was plain to her. These two pieces of metal joined would represent a story worth the having.

"Do you not desire it, then?" The voice of the monarch carried a certain reproach.

"Desire it, your majesty! I should desire nothing so much in all the world. With both halves in my hand—sire, I should feel that the world was mine."

"Why not gratify that wish then, mademoiselle? Listen, Count Frederick desired this very trinket—for a lady, he said. Here is a lady who desires it for herself. Why should we not give it her—why should we not have right as good as his?"

"You cannot mean it for me?"

"But yes, precisely! And listen, my dear young lady. There is something about this broken coin which begins to annoy me. Count Frederick is always referring to it for one reason or another—he has some motive which I cannot divine. Now, of late I have had abundant troubles, many persons who importune me. In these serious times, the people being so discontented, we have matters of more importance than to trifle with this trinket, as I say. You desire it. It bores me. Who better than yourself should own it if you like?"

Kitty stood looking at him, scarce believing what he said. King Michael went out.

"Two things interest me today, my dear lady. First, how to quiet my people, the second, to discover some fashion which shall keep you here in our own country, interested and useful. I am convinced of your own wisdom, your own justice—your own experience in your land as to law and liberty and justice. Sometimes out of the mouth of a woman—a lady of rank, of experience—you might learn the better how to carry on the duties of a state."

"And the duties of the state would dispose your majesty warmly to the good of his people?"

"Precisely. It is as I would have said it, mademoiselle. You Americans are extraordinary!"

Kitty took from his hand the broken bit of metal and examined it thoughtfully.

"I thank you more than I can tell, your majesty," said she, soberly. "It shall be my pleasure to find out for your people the unexplained message of this coin."

Relieved now of this care, and satisfied that her plan would provide for the safety of this prized possession for that night at least—Kitty passed on to other matters.

Of what use, after all, was half this coin, while the Count Frederick still retained the other half—taken from her by force, by violence?

She stood for a time, her fingers at her lips, engaged in thought. "I am going direct to Count Frederick himself and ask him for the other half of the coin. He knows the king has given me his half—perhaps he will relent and let me match the king's half of the Gretzhoff coin."

With her to think was to act. A half hour later, ready robed for the street, she was in her car and on her way to the palace of Count Frederick.

They knew her at the count's palace now—or thought they knew her—and so no questions were asked when she applied at the door. Pending the coming of the count, who was at home, as she learned, she was shown to a reception room close to the entry door. As she sat here, she heard footsteps approaching, heard voices in conversation. She knew that Count Frederick was there, but not alone.

Kitty listened shamelessly—for now indeed all was fair in war for her in case like this.

She heard Count Frederick address his companion as "My Lord Minister," and again as "Danislaw," so knew that it was none other than the prime minister of Gretzhoff with whom he was conversing.

"My friend," she heard a hard, incisive voice declare, "this ball tonight is the crowning mistake of the entire year. It may mean the ruin of Gretzhoff. I tell you, Count Frederick, revolution is in the air. The people are demanding the answer to all their sufferings, to their poverty, their anxieties. That answer, if we do not use every means to change it, surely will be written red!"

"But what plan do you propose, my lord minister? What can I do?"

"One thing. Let me be blunt and brief—have the king sober tonight! I shame to say those words—but those are my words to you. Have our monarch—whom we reverence—sober tonight! If the people see him drunken, if they find him careless, indifferent, in times like this—pouf!—revolution. I tell you, and the answer written with the pen of blood."

Count Frederick apparently paused at this. There was a hint of something suppressed in his voice when at length he did reply.

"My lord minister, I'll see the king!"

Kitty thought that now they clasped hands. She heard the prime minister departing, each giving the other formal words of courtesy.

Now she heard Frederick calling to his servants.

"Rubinoff, Franko—any of your calls—well, you, Rubinoff. Go at once to the apartments of the Count Sachio and ask him if he will join me at once."

Kitty, still trembling in suppressed excitement, waited yet longer before declaring herself. She heard Frederick pacing up and down in the room, muttering to himself—heard also after an interminable interval the footsteps of another in the hall—heard Frederick greet him.

"Ah, Sachio, you are welcome indeed. We have news for you, my friend—news that may go well with our plans."

"Command me, my dear Frederick."

"I ask you, my dear Sachio, to do an easy, pleasant and interesting task. It is no more than to go this afternoon, to win in some fashion into the presence of King Michael the Second, our beloved monarch—whom we both reverence—and then and there, by what means shall seem most expedient, to induce him to drink more wine than ever he did in one day in his life."

Count Sachio laughed loud and long.

"For what purpose, my good Frederick?" he inquired at length.

"For a plain and definite purpose! Listen. As you know, I have had my eyes on the throne of Gretzhoff since the death of the old king. That throne is rightfully mine, and will be mine. This land is full of discontent—like your own, yonder. The people complain. They are on the very verge of revolution at this moment. This great ball tonight—the thought of its expense has enraged our people. Now, if tonight they see our beloved monarch—whom we both reverence—in his usual or more than his usual state of intoxication—then there's the match to the powder mill. The revolution is begun. The explosion is made. It will be too late, then. Their wrath against the weak Michael—disappearing, wasting their substance for them—will be unappeasable. For the rest—I have made my plans. My own regiments will be faithful. The regiments of the king are none too faithful. The banditti of the desert are with us. Tomorrow there will be a new king in Gretzhoff, and that king will be—Frederick the First."

Kitty slipped from the room. The hall was empty. An instant later she was out of the great entry and passing to her car.

At her hotel, once more she hurried to her room. Here was somewhat to be done. She knew the plot now—all was plain as to the intentions of Frederick in regard to the kingdom of Gretzhoff and to the monarch who held the throne.

"Your majesty," she wrote in her rolling hand now. "The young American so much honored by your gift—which is returned to your care at midnight tonight—has by chance learned of a plot to injure your majesty and to injure the kingdom of Gretzhoff as well. Trust her to explain when opportunity shall come. Meantime have the word of one who is solicitous for your safety. Drink no wine. Beware."

Once more she telephoned to the bureau of telegraphs, called for a messenger, and sent her simple missive to the king.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Prisoner.

Having dispatched her messages, Kitty Gray sat alone once more in her room. There came to her mind once more the reflection that now she had not even one portion of the broken coin. As to that which had gone to the king, she felt fairly sure that she might regain it. As to that which had been taken from her by force by Count Frederick, she was far as ever from its possession.

"The simplest way is the best," said she once more. "I'll go back there again."

"I was not so fortunate as to find Monsieur the count at home before," she explained to the attendants who met her at the door.

"Monsieur the count has gone out but now."

A sudden resolution came to Kitty's mind even as a sudden flush came to her cheek.

"So? Then I will wait his coming. If you please, the apartments of Monsieur the count."

The man left her, and she closed the door. An instant later she was at work turning over the articles on the dresser, peering here and there, looking this way and that—and unsuccessfully.

But meantime the attendant who had left her, anxious to be of service to his master, sent out posthaste to summon Count Frederick to his return. He met the count himself, and yet another attendant, upon the point of entering the palace. The newcomer was talking to the count excitedly.

"Excellency, I tell you the woman is outwitting you. She sent her half of the coin this very morning—sent it to the king by special messenger. I saw it—I felt it in the envelope. I am sure. There is some plot afoot. And I brought the news as soon as possible, but have searched for you long."

"Come," said Frederick, and he hastened the more when he met the messenger advising him of Kitty's presence in the palace.

Her search still uncompleted, Kitty heard footsteps approaching, and turned desperately like some trapped animal. There was no escape—the narrow window, as she knew, was two stories above the court below. And even as she stepped to the door she met there the smiling, sardonic face of Count Frederick himself.

"The honor is mine, mademoiselle!" said he with icy politeness. "True, I had not expected you."

Shamefaced, confused, for once unable to make any explanation, Kitty could but stand and stare at him. An instant later she heard the click of the lock and the passing of footsteps in the hall once more. She was alone! She was a prisoner!

She sat alone, helpless, unanswered in spite of her pounding on the door, her cries for help, until she was utterly weary—until the shades of night came.

She looked at her watch. The hour was approaching eleven. The great black and white ball was now in progress at the winter palace across the city.

She went to the window and looked out into the night. All the court was dark—save one window directly below her on the opposite side, fifteen feet below, ten feet across the narrow courtyard. Even as she looked down at it she saw a face thrust out—a face upturned towards her.

"Rouleau!" she exclaimed. "Can it be possible? Rouleau, help me! I am a prisoner here—they have locked me in—there is no way out. Help me!"

Rouleau's own presence in the palace she did not at the moment undertake to explain. As a matter of fact, he had but that day come in from the camp of the banditti, where he had been detained.

"Wait," he cried. "I will show you."

An iron grating, with the stairs of a fire escape, led down directly in front of Rouleau's window. He came out upon this, braced his legs across, and back under the rail, and held out his mighty arms.

"Jump," he cried. "It is safe."

An instant later she was on the iron grating and into the window, and Rouleau, gaunt, unshaven, smiling, her friend and rescuer, had led her to the door.

"Come," he said, and without pausing for any discussion, he hurried out, she following.

"It is late, Rouleau," whispered Kitty back to him. "It is eleven o'clock. The king goes to the great ball at midnight. Hurry, I must be there. Quick!"

CHAPTER XIV.

The Ballroom.

In his own apartments that evening Michael the king had passed the time in somewhat preoccupied fashion. Left alone, and hence unhappy in his counsels, he welcomed the announcement of the presence of the Count Sachio of Grahaffen, who wished to pay his compliments to the king.

"Come then, my dear count," said Michael to him. "You are very welcome at this hour. You will have a glass of our own vintage—I have a cask of Luceyen which is quite worth while."

"With all my heart," said Count Sachio.

The attendant removed the cork from the bottle reverently, poured slowly, gently, the amber fluid into the tall glasses upon the table. It was at that moment that King Michael he thought him of a certain message handed to him but left until now unopened. He frowned as he looked at the word, irrelevant when addressed to royalty, and urging haste. "Important. Is it so? What shall I do, my dear count? Throw it away?"

Count Sachio cast a glance upon the inscription.

"Your majesty," said he, "it is in the hand of a lady. By no means throw away any letter, a woman writes to you—and by no means write one yourself. Am I not good counsel?"

Smiling, King Michael broke open the small hotel seal, frowning as he did so at what seemed to him undue familiarity on the part of someone, he knew not who. But as his eyes ran over the few lines of the message his expression suddenly changed. The words remained deeply written on his mind. "Your majesty . . . young American . . . drink no wine."

Count Sachio looked on respectfully, his glass arrested, naturally venturing no comment. King Michael made no effort to turn the conversation. He left his wine untasted!

"Indeed, our people also are growing in audacity," went on Count Sachio presently. "But I, pledge your majesty a long and happy reign." He raised his glass and waited.

"Drink heartily, good Count Sachio," said King Michael. "As for myself, I have dined but lately, as I said. The doctors say dreadful things to me. You excuse me?"

He had poured but a small portion in his own glass, and raised his hand against more.

Sachio was obliged to admit to Count Frederick, whom now he early sought, that he doubted the full success of his errand.

"Leave him then to me," exclaimed Frederick—"he never fails to do as I ask. Make ready for the ball—time presses now. I myself will hasten to see the king before he leaves for the winter palace."

Frederick, making urgent excuses now to enter the apartments of the king after his arrival, found the monarch in the same apartment, stolidly regarding the now empty bottle of wine.

A certain idea came to the brain of Michael, the king, as he now acknowledged the visit of Count Frederick at so late an hour. If this message had warned him not to drink wine—then there must be someone in the world who wished him to drink wine. Why? Who was that person? Might it not be this man here—Count Frederick—the man whom really he feared? If so, would not feigned intoxication serve well to discover the other's nature?

Reasoning thus, King Michael with small exertion of histrionic art managed to give an excellent imitation to his friend of a monarch far gone in wine. Frederick, pleading fatigue and thirst, plied him farther, and Michael apparently yielded, using still such arts as served him for the time being.

When, not too long before the appointed hour of midnight, Frederick left the palace, he left behind him as he was assured, a monarch hopelessly fuddled.

So the lights flamed on at all the windows of the Winter palace.

Suddenly the music broke, crashed and swept into the national air. A murmur went about! The king! The dancers hastened back to the sides of the room. All eyes turned toward the great entrance.

Under the festooned flags, escorted by his uniformed officers, himself wearing all his decorations and garbed as a king should be, there appeared King Michael of Gretzhoff.

The hour of midnight struck. The eyes of more than one man, on the great dancing floor—including those of Count Frederick of Gretzhoff—looked at the king amazed. Here was no staggering monarch, maudlin in his cups, come to make a spectacle of himself before his people. No, he walked straight as any. And behind him from the street there came not shouts of derision, but something of welcome, of confidence—a pitiful expression of a people willing yet longer to endure a king.

At the king's side, her hand on his arm, there walked the figure of a tall and beautiful woman, arrayed—as were all those others present—in a costume of black and white—a tall young woman whom not many of those present recognized. A few passed the word, "The American!"

The music of the royal anthem ceased. An instant and the orchestra broke out once more in the sensuous strains of a southern waltz. King Michael as yet did not dance, but he gave word that the ball should proceed. A uniformed officer of the court now approached Count Frederick as he stood not far removed from the royal presence.

"Monsieur, the count," said he de-

Stop in and Get Our Book on Cement Work

You will find it well worth reading and keeping. It is a big, illustrated instruction book that shows how to make concrete walks, steps, porch floors, silos, well-platforms and many other kinds of concrete construction.

We have secured a limited number of these books to distribute in this community, free of charge. The supply will not last long, so call for your copy soon.

ALPHA THE GUARANTEED PORTLAND CEMENT

is the kind that gives our customers the most satisfactory results in all kinds of concrete work.

We recommend ALPHA because we know that its quality never varies; it is always great in strength and binding power and we guarantee it to more than meet the U. S. Government standard for strength. It is the kind of cement to use for every concrete work.

Your contractor knows ALPHA Portland Cement. He knows that the great railroads and the Government use it for their important work.

Stop in and get the book, and let us tell you more about the Guaranteed Portland Cement.

CLEARFIELD HARDWARE CO.

CLEARFIELD, PENNA.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

(Rate five cents per line per insertion. No reduction for time.)

Prothonotary
We are authorized to announce JOHN H. MOORE, of Clearfield, as a candidate for prothonotary, subject to the rules of the Republican primary election. 6-11-tr

Register and Recorder
We are authorized to announce ED. B. CHASE, of Clearfield, as a candidate for Register and Recorder, subject to the rules of the republican primary election. 6-10-1f.

Automobile Tires—Our leader carries the same guarantee as the Diamond, Goodrich, Goodyear and Firestone. A new one if not satisfactory, instead of an adjustment. Parcels post delivery. 30x3 or 30x3 1-2 Plain $9, non-skid $10. A tube free with every pair. Sell all sizes. Pope Agency, Grampian, Pa.

ferentially, "I have had for some hours in my possession this package which I have not opened. It is marked to be presented to his majesty at midnight here. Do you think it should be delivered?"

Even as they spoke the king himself, accompanied, in accordance with his request, by the young woman who

FEDERATION SENDS PROPOSAL

(By United Press)

Chicago, July 19.—The Chicago Federation of Labor today wired President Wilson a copy of a resolution adopted by the federation, calling the President to investigate the cause and sentence to life imprisonment John R. Lawson.

All silk crepe-de-chene waists, different styles $2.50 values at $1.49 at Mirkins.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS SPENT ON STOMACH

Pennsylvania Man Gets Quick Relief for His Long Suffering Stomach.

Henry F. Curry of the Hotel R. left at Cambridge Springs, Pa., after most desperately suffering from the stomach and digestive troubles. He spent a fortune in the suit of health.

A. W. LEONARDSON CO. A. W. LEONARDSON CO.

Our July Clearance of Summer Merchandise Offer Many Money Savings This Week.

DRESS FABRICS

- 12 1/2c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....7 1/2c
- 15c and 19c Figured Batiste, clearance price.....10c
- 15c Dress Gingham, clearance price.....10c
- 15c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....10c
- 25c Figured Voiles, clearance price.....15c
- 25c Figured Crepes, clearance price.....15c
- 25c Butterfly Crepes, clearance price.....13c
- 35c Silk Stripe Voiles, clearance price.....25c
- 50c Voiles and Crepes, clearance price.....33c

Dresses!—Decisively Reduced

Women's and Misses' Dainty Summer Wash Dresses are going fast for but a fraction of actual values.

- $ 3.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$1.95
- $ 4.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$2.95
- $ 5.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$3.95
- $ 6.50 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$4.95
- $10.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$5.95
- $12.50 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$7.95
- $15.00 Wash Dresses, reduced to.....$9.95

Waists!—Decisively Reduced

- $1.00 Waists, reduced to.....49c
- $1.25 Waists, reduced to.....79c
- $1.50 Waists, reduced to.....98c
- $2.00 Waists, reduced to.....$1.45
- $3.00 Waists, reduced to.....$1.95
- $4.50 Waists, reduced to.....$2.75

Suits!—Decisively Reduced

Women's Tailored Suits in medium weight that are most desirable for summer, are no win three lots for quick clearance.

- $15.00 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$5.95
- $19.75 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$7.50
- $25.00 Tailored Suits, clearance price.....$9.75

Coats!—Decisively Reduced

Twenty Light Weight Summer Coats to be cleaned out for half price and less.

A Separate Coat is indispensable in this climate—you'll need one for your vacation trip, look them over.

- $ 5.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$1.95
- $10.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$4.95
- $12.50 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$5.95
- $15.00 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$7.95
- $22.50 Separate Coats, clearance price.....$9.95

Silk Dresses and Evening Gowns

- $ 8.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$4.95
- $10.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$5.95
- $12.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$7.95
- $15.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$9.95
- $17.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$12.50
- $22.50 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$14.75
- $35.00 Silk Dresses, reduced to.....$19.50

A. W. LEONARDSON CO.
MARKET STREET CLEARFIELD, PA.

MOTHER'S PENSION VS CHILD POVERTY

(BY UNITED PRESS)

San Francisco, July 20.—Delegates from twenty-five states of the union which four years ago new nothing of the pensioning of mothers for the abolition of child-poverty, are today meeting in the first annual session of the National Mother's Convention at the Civic Auditorium. The subject of persons from all angles and particularly the mother and theory of the present law will be discussed.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

Gossip for Tonight's Tea Table

TUESDAY, JULY 20, 1915

Roy Jameson, of New York is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jameson on West Market street. Mr. Jameson is interested in the real estate business in New York.

J. J. Lancaster, of DuBois, was a business caller yesterday.

H. M. Fry, of Williamsport, had business in Clearfield Monday.

D. E. Brown, of Punxsutawney, is in town today.

Irvi F. Losch, of Cherry Tree, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday.

A. H. Rathwell, of Blue Ball, had business in Clearfield Monday.

Mrs. Tom Bowman left on the river line this morning for Leocotes Mills where she will spend a few days visiting her sisters.

M. A. Deitrich, of Patton had business in Clearfield yesterday.

John Dugosh and wife of Grass Flat were Clearfield visitors Monday.

S. O. Chase who has been visiting relatives in Clearfield for the past few days left yesterday for his home in Jersey Shore.

A. H. McKenzie, Mrs. J. W. Rubley and Miss L. F. Rubley, of Kuthaus spent yesterday in Clearfield.

W. H. Mussehanan, of Philipsburg, was a business visitor in Clearfield Monday.

E. E. Hyles, of Bigler, spent yesterday in Clearfield.

Wm. Lester and wife, of Arcadia, were Clearfield callers on Monday.

J. W. Crawford, of Jersey Shore had business in Clearfield yesterday.

Roy Johnson, of Eighth street has purchased a new Metz automobile through the Lee garage.

M. W. Williams, of Clearfield, left on the 3:40 train Sunday for Strasburg, Ohio, where he will assist B. F. Barkey in the building of a new brick works.

R. M. Dodson, of Curwensville, and H. A. Hunter, route managers of the International Correspondence school motored to Clearfield Monday.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

CLEVELAND TO HAVE RESEARCH INSTITUTE

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Cleveland, O., July 20.—Important discoveries leading to methods of combating diseases resulting from bad teeth are expected to follow the establishment here of the Research Institute of the National Dental Association. To carry forward the work an endowment fund of $1,000,000 will be raised; $54,000 has already been secured, mainly from dentists.

The purpose of the institute, according to incorporation papers recently filed, is the "finding and establishing of means for the relief of mankind from the indirect and direct ravages of dental and oral diseases; to support, establish and encourage investigation, research and discovery of knowledge and the dissemination thereof to the improvement of mankind."

It is the plan of the association to assist financially researchers that are being contemplated or carried on in various parts of the country by those who have become especially proficient in certain lines and are confronted by problems they are trying to solve. Research work will also be done here in Cleveland.

Valuable contributions from the investigators on the following topics are expected: The relation of mouth infection to diseases of various parts of the body; the relation of saliva to conditions of decay of teeth; the causative factors of pyorrhea; and better combinations of metals for filling cavities.

COLUMBUS FIGHTING SMOKE NUISANCE

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Columbus, O., July 20.—Educators persuasion and finally compulsion are the methods being used by the Columbus smoke inspection department to abate the smoke and soot nuisance. The department is teaching factory managers who permit their smokestacks to fill the air with tons of unconsumed fuel that they are wasting money; that proper appliance and firing will cut down their fuel bill and keep the surrounding air pure; and that obnoxious in compliance with suggestions will be met with compulsion.

Crepe kimono, hand embroidered blue, pink, lavender, grey and flower. Special while they last for 98c at Mirkins. See window display.

Advertise in the Progress.

MAY TRY TO TURN SWINDLE INTO BIG BONANZA

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—Although the appraisers who went to Mexico and looked over the property of the International Lumber and Paper Co. have reported that the assets of the concern were $735,000 instead of $27,000,000 as claimed by the promoters who are now in jail, the stockholders are still hopeful. Many of those who brought shares in the big $6,000,000 swindle believe that the fraud can be changed into a bonanza, and that all of the money invested can be returned with handsome dividends under the right management.

John O. Sheatz, the receiver, will later report as to the advisability of continuing the Mexican plantation as a going concern. He has looked over the ground with the appraisers. It is understood that his opinion will be based largely on the possibilities of early peace in Mexico. With efficient management under peaceful conditions, many stockholders believe the plantation can be worked with success.

Four former officials and promoters of the bankrupt development are now in the Eastern penitentiary. They are John Markley, Isaiah B. Miller, A. G. Stewart and Charles H. McMahon. They were convicted in the federal court here of defrauding stockholders through fraudulent statements of the development work being done on the plantation and the earning capacity of the concern. It was brought out at the trial that dividends to the amount of $1,500,000 had been paid out of the capital stock and not from the earnings.

A half million rubber trees were valued in the company's pamphlets at two and a half millions. According to the appraisers, the entire 600 acre rubber plantation is worth just $100. The principle assets of the company are the 292,544 acre San Pablo plantation, at Campeche, Mexico and a henequin field covering 18,625 acres. Although the promoters claimed they had expended four millions on their lumber tract, and placed a value upon it of thirteen millions, the appraisers place a value of one dollar an acre on the tract.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNTIES FREED FROM QUARANTINE

Department of Agriculture Lifts Ban on Movement of Stock

Fayette county is freed from quarantine for the foot-and-mouth-disease by an order effective July 12. This order also places Jefferson County in the restricted area where the quarantine regulations are the most stringent of all. There is now no closed area in the State of Pennsylvania, and the only exposed area is that portion of Philadelphia County between the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers south of Washington Avenue.

Philadelphia. The hog and sheep division of the West Philadelphia Stock yards, Allegheny County will be exception of the Pittsburgh Union Stock Yards, Wayne Township in Erie County, the Columbus Township in Warren county, are in the notified area. In the restricted area are the rest of Erie and Allegheny counties, the whole of Berks, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Jefferson, Lebanon, Montgomery, Schuylkill and Westmoreland counties. Lancaster County with the exception of a part of the Lancaster Stock yards, the cattle division of the West Philadelphia Stock yards, and all of Philadelphia County with the exception of the exposed area already described. The Pittsburgh Union Stock yards are also restricted area, but it is provided that the yards may be used for handling live stock for immediate slaughter only.

WALLACETON TABERNACLE MEETING IS SUCCESSFUL

The tabernacle service at Wallaceton was attended Sunday evening more than 600 people. On Monday evening there was also a large crowd. Tonight J. H. Deibel, of outstate will preach.

CHARTER NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the Governor of Pennsylvania on the nineteenth day of August 1915, by Warren Partridge, W. O. Hoover and James P. O'Laughlin under the act of assembly entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations," approved April 23, 1874, and the supplements thereto, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called the Glen Hope Light, Heat & Power company, the character and object of which is manufacturing and supplying light, heat and power, by electricity, to the public in the Borough of Glen Hope, Clearfield county, Pennsylvania and to such persons partnerships and corporations residing therein or adjacent thereto, as may desire the same, and for these purposes to have, possess, and enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of said act of assembly and supplements thereto.

MURRAY & O'LAUGHLIN
J 19 26-Aug 2 Solicitors

CURWENSVILLE

Edited by G. F. Kittleberger, Jr.

Lowell K. Hays, who is employed at Snow Shoe by the Penn. Pu Service, spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hayes of Bridgeport.

C. E. Patton who has been in Sykesville looking after the interests of the Curwensville Construction, which is constructing the Municipal water works there, visited at his home here over Sunday.

Mother's meeting of the W. C. T. U. Thursday afternoon, July 22, at the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Esther Odell and sister of Juanita are visiting at the home of H. S. Eckert on Meadow Avenue.

Mrs. S. Canfield Wilson returned Saturday from Osceola after a day spent in conference with the other W. C. T. U. county officers to arrange for the county convention.

Roy Strickland, who has spent the past several weeks in Nant-y-Glo, is visiting with his parents in South Curwensville. Mr. Strickland went to Nant-y-Glo to play ball and seems to have made good. The following is taken from the Johnstown Democrat.

Nant-y-Glo, July 12.—Trailing the rear of Big Bend by one run in Saturday's game on the local diamond, Strickland, Nant-y-Glo's moundsman, smashed out a home run with one on in the last half of the ninth, winning the game for the locals, 7 to 6. One man was down at the time.

In the box score Strickland was credited with two runs, 1 hit, 1 put out, 6 assists, no errors, 2 stolen bases, one base on balls and nine strike outs.

UNIQUE TEST OF WORK. MEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Unique Test of Workmen's Compensation

Olympia, Wash., July 20.—A suit that will test the limits of workmen's compensation will be argued here today. Whether employers are liable in cases where outside influences cause the death of their employees is the problem the Thurston County Court has been called upon to decide. Attorney Thomas P. Fisk will argue today for the families of the trainmen who, while working for the Simpson Logging Company, were ambushed and shot by a disgruntled and discharged employee. They were running a logging train in the regular line of duty and admittedly did not contribute toward the shooting and injury. The question involved is merely one of whether or not the Industrial Insurance fund in this state protects employees from attacks of injuries arising entirely outside the work they are doing, but to which risks the employee is subjected.

In its far-reaching effect the present suit is regarded as extremely important by members of the industrial commission.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"
said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Says the Editor:
"A political editorial to write and almost time for the presses to close. If ever I need calm, clear, quick thinking I need it now."

"A chew of PICNIC TWIST will lay me up to just the right pitch and there won't be any letdown afterwards."

The big thing about PICNIC TWIST is the naturally sweet, long-lasting satisfaction of the mild, mellow part of the leaf. You can chew more PICNIC TWIST than you can of a dark, rank, "heavy" tobacco, and have no "come-back" on your nerves from it.

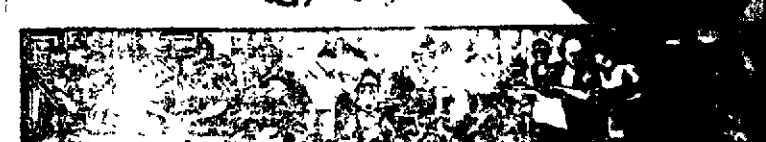

That is what men all over the country are finding out about this convenient, soft twist that's as mild as tobacco can be.

PicNIC TWIST CHEWING TOBACCO

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"

It comes, also, in economical, freshness-preserving drums of 11 twists

Exported by J. W. Galt Co.

FLORIDA MASONS AT SCHOOL

(BY UNITED PRESS)

West Palm Beach, Fla., July 20.—Masons from the lodges along the East coast of Florida are gathered here today to attend instruction classes in degrees by the Master Mason Lodges.

In order that they might fight out their divorce suit, an Oklahoma judge has allowed a couple to mortgage their farm. Naturally, the lawyers did not object.

OLANTA

Miss Cora Glenn has returned to her home in Altoona, where she will teach this year.

Mrs. Joseph Dunlap of town is ill at her sister's in Woodland.

H. L. Bowman, of Clearfield, called at the home of P. M. Woods while on a motor trip Sunday afternoon.

Olanta played two games Saturday winning both. Scores, first game, Olanta, 4; Boardman, 1. Second game, Olanta 16, Faunce 5.

The Mt. Zion ladies O. A. B. C. will be entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. S. Bowman.

CLASSIFIED

First insertion 25c—Each additional insertion 15c for 25 words or less. Each additional word is per word per insertion.

POSITIONS WANTED

No charge will be made to persons applying for positions through these columns. They must want ads.

HELP WANTED

WANTED—Position as housekeeper. Estey Putty, Woodland, Pa. 6-14-15 or, in town or near town. Inquire.

WANTED—Young married man wants work. Can run auto and do some repair work. A. J. H., 416 Dufay street. H. & C. phone 516-2.

WANTED—Washing to do at home or will go to the house for any kind of days' work. Call H. & C. phone 241-2.

Wanted: Position as housekeeper or will go out by the day. Write Box 5, Woodland, Pa.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—Acres 3 deck porch, even. Good as new. All pans, fixtures, trough, etc. Also 5 sheep cages and 2 dozen candy dishes. Will be sold cheap. Apply 215 Nichols St. 215.

FOR SALE—30 acre farm on hill under cultivation, one-half century growth timber. In Biggs township, 3 1/2 miles from Clearfield. 8 room house in good condition, new barn and out buildings. Water system. Will either sell or exchange for town property. For terms etc., apply to William Wisor, Route 5, Clearfield.

FOR SALE—150,000 feet of hemlock lumber suitable for all building purposes at very reasonable prices. For Dr. C. E. Chase 4-405.

Brick House for Sale

Corner Seventh and Dorey streets. Concrete walk, curb and cellar. Electric light. 7 rooms and bath. For price and terms see Leslie F. Hapfer, 413 Dorey street. 5-25-15

The natives of Glen have a house of odd numbers. They never build a house or a temple with five, seven, nine or eleven windows.

JACOBSON'S

Furniture, Rugs, Stoves and Household Goods

—AT—

POPULAR PRICES

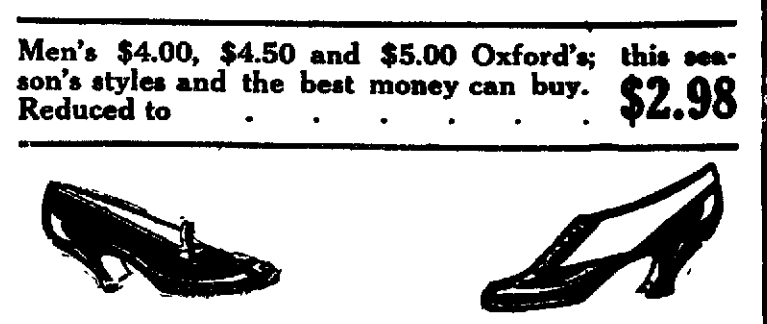

—AT—

JACOBSON'S

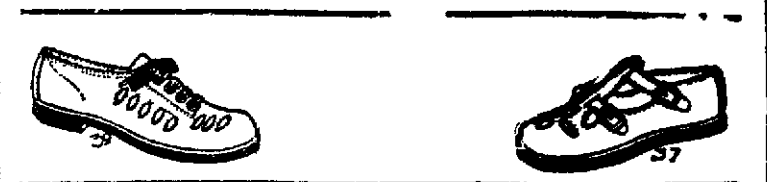

212 REED STREET

Big Bargains in Men's and Women's Low Shoes

Men's $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00 Oxford's; this season's styles and the best money can buy. $2.98 Reduced to

All of our Women's $3.50 and $4.00 Pumps; in all styles, now $2.48
Women's $3.00 Pumps, at $1.98
Special lot of Women's and Children's White High and Low Shoes, at 98c

Men's, Women's and Children's fennis Shoes, Bare-foot Sandals and Outing Shoes all at bargain prices

Brown's Boot Shop

CLEARFIELD, PA.

FLEGAL'S All Straw Hats at Half Price All Panama at 25 per cent off FLEGAL'S